A MAN'S APPEARANCE SHOULD BE AN ASSET.

A man can make his appearance work either for or against his interests—as he chooses.

Good results can hardly be expected where "low price" is the main consideration.

You pay just a little more for an "E. T. Walsh" suit than you would for an indifferently made, ordinary class production.

Yet the quality of "E. T. Walsh" garments wins the admiration of the most exacting dressers; is, indeed, the highest attainment of tailoring art and skill.

The magnificent fabrics at our showrooms will arouse your keenest approval. Call and inspect them to-day.

E. T. WALSH, EXPERT TAILOR,
122 Pitt-street, corner of Rowe-street, Sydney.

AN "AUSTRAL" TAILORED SUIT AT FOUR GUINEAS.

To-day we are displaying a most exceptional range of Australian and British Tweeds of medium and light weight, in a variety of attractive colourings and patterns.

This special exhibit may be viewed in our main Show Window on George-street, at Headquarters, and merits a visit of inspection during the next few days.

An "Austral" Sac Suit to measure of any of these good fabrics costs no more than four guineas, and is convincing evidence of the standard of value of "Austral" Tailoring at whatever the price.

Country Customers and those who live at a distance may choose from patterns of these special Suitings which we send post free to any address on request.

THE INDIVIDUAL PHOTOGRAPH!
THE INDIVIDUAL PHOTOGRAPH!
THE INDIVIDUAL PHOTOGRAPH!

To-day everyone has been more or less educated in art, and are keen critics of the lighting, posing, and general build-up of a good photograph; they easily discern the difference between the artistic and the crude.

As a great musician delights to play before a keen critic, so we cater for those who know the best.

Our patrons return to us time after time, and are living advertisements for our skill.

There are photographs that do not appeal to you. There is no soul in them. The sitter has been photographed without expression, and the lack of animation would suggest a statue rather than an individual.

OUR portraits are noted for faithfulness of the likeness of the sitter. They seem to utter that personality of yours known to your friends.

HOW LONG HAVE I TO LIVE?

asked Captain de L——, an aide-de-camp of the Duke of Wellington, when he heard that Napoleon had escaped from Elba and was again in Paris.

"Although you are in an advanced stage of consumption," replied the captain's physician, "with my care you may live several months."

"Several months only," exclaimed de L——; "then I may as well die in battle as in my bed."

He rejoined his regiment, fought at Waterloo, received a wound which removed all the diseased part of his lungs, and lived for several years.

Which goes to prove that fortune favours the brave, and also that medicine has always been more or less an experimental science. Our 24 years' experience in catering for the requirements of the public has carried us far

D. W. GRIFFITH'S Mighty Dramatic Spectacle:

INTOLERANCE

"LOVE'S STRUGGLE THROUGHOUT THE AGES."

Staggering in its Immensity, Terrific in its Realism, Inspired in its Idealism, and Thrilling in Action and Story.

The "Sydney Morning Herald":—

"'Intolerance' . . . . has reconstructed the past on a colossal scale. . . . . Incredible magnificence."

The "Sydney Daily Telegraph":—

"Scenes of startling magnificence. . . . . . Rises to the highest heights of cinematography that has been seen here."

The "Sydney Evening News":—

"Frequently one reads that something or other has 'beggared description.' The aptness of the phrase will be the better realised after seeing 'Intolerance.'"

Writing his impressions of "INTOLERANCE" in "The Theatre Magazine," Mr. E. H. BOOTE, editor of "The Worker," Sydney, says, in a remarkable article:—

It is hard to believe that this amazing play has been conceived in a modern brain and realised by modern ingenuity.

Griffith must have LIVED in all those ages; he must have DWELT in all those places. How else could he make me know Belshazzar as I know Jones and Robinson? How else could he familiarise me with Jerusalem and its motley crowd, till I am on the same intimate terms with them as with Woolloomooloo and its blokes and donahs?

I have seen them with these actual bodily eyes of mine. I have fled through the filthy alleys of Old Paris, pursued by the merciless mercenaries of Catharine of Medicis. I have followed the barbarous mob of Romans and Jews hastening to the sights on Calvary.

I have seen the wedding-feast at Cana, and Christ sitting among the guests. I have been present at the shaming of those who took the Woman in adultery, when no man dared cast the first stone because he was not without sin.

I have seen the stupendous perspectives of a City that was mistress of the world when the peoples who were to produce the great nations of to-day still hunted with stone axes and made their homes in caves.

I have seen the enacting of the foulest tragedy in the annals of France—thirty thousand victims falling in a bloody saturnalia of seven days and nights.

And I have seen the injustice and the despotism that carry on their devastating work behind the Statue of Liberty in the greatest Republic of all time.

I have SEEN it. For this is not a story. It is not a play. It is a revelation.

It does not reconstruct the Past by putting its mouldering bones together, like an extinct animal. It makes it live.

It places it side by side with the Present, and we look from one to the other bewildered, for the Past is the image of the Present; the Present a replica of the Past.

The "Sydney Sunday Times":—

"The authors see the ghoul Intolerance standing horrific and bestial behind all the cruelty and infamy and heaped-up miseries of the world. They show intolerance blistering and festering to evil ends in Babylon, in Jerusalem, in the Paris of Louis Treize, and in modern America. The fourfold story-scheme is revealed in gasps and snatches, and is somehow all the more effective for that."

Good Health and Beauty go Hand in Hand

Beauty is the outward sign of good health. Good health is the bodily necessity for beauty.
Not only those who possess classical features are beautiful. Some women have possessed a feature, mouth nose or eyes, that was not perfect, and yet were considered beautiful. Why? Because they were healthy looking, their skin was clear, their eyes were bright and their brain was active.

INDUSTRIAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Heydon.)

VARIATION OF CONSTITUTION.

His Honor delivered judgment in the application on behalf of the Labourers' Group, No. 1 (Railway and Tramway Construction, etc.) Board, for variation of the constitution by the Railway and Tramway Construction Branch, Field Staff Association. His Honor recommended the constitution of a board, to be known as the gangers' board, for the industries of gangers (not including riding gangers), timekeepers, storekeepers, transport officers, foremen and sub-foremen (not including general foremen, inspectors, or horse-bosses), sub-inspectors, and all assistants employed in connection with any such callings, engaged in the construction of railways, tramways, roads, bridges, water conservation and irrigation works, and harbour and reclamation works, and not doing any manual labour therein in the State, excluding the county of Yancowinna. Excepting the employees of the Chief Commissioner for Railways and Tramways, the Metropolitan Board of Water Supply and Sewerage, and the Hunter Supply and Sewerage Board. As to the exceptions, the applicant union asked that the Municipal Council of Sydney, the shires and municipal councils, the Commonwealth Oil Corporation, Limited, at Newnes, and the British Australian Oil Company, Limited, be not exempted. "These bodies must be notified that they may be heard," said his Honor, "and till that is done the constitution of the board cannot be completed. With regard to the membership of the board, I think that there should be only one on each side. The new Act shows that the Legislature wishes the Court itself to deal with as many claims as possible. In such cases no members at all will be required, and in the meantime we wish to keep down the numbers of members as much as possible. After having considered the lists sent in by the applicant association and by the Railway Workers and General Labourers' Association, and the reasons pro and con, I have come to the conclusion that the applicant association should have the nomination of the employees' member. It must be admitted that there are a good many gangers in the Railway Workers' Union, but the same reasons which make it advisable that gangers should have their own board apply to some extent in the membership question, and, moreover, though the gangers seem to be the most numerous body concerned in the application, there are other workers, none of whom are in the Railway Workers' Union. As to who should be chairman I reserve my decision, for it may be that the Court itself will deal with these claims. The only thing now left to be decided, therefore, is who should be excepted from the board, and I will have that called on at as early a date as possible, and in the meantime the applicant union must send notice to the four bodies mentioned whom they wish to include under the board."

PRINTING TRADES.

Mr. G. Lewis moved, on behalf of the Printing Trades, Women and Girls, Employees' Union, for the constitution of a board for paper bag and envelope makers, under the printing trades group. He suggested that the Printing Trades Board (No. 6 Group) should be extended so as to include the applicants. His Honor adopted the suggestion. Mr. C. Mather appeared for the Master Printers and Connected Trades Association.

Joseph v Head.

Francis Henry Joseph, of Roslyn, 167 Belmore-road, Coogee, picture show proprietor, sued Reuben F. Head, of 2 Marriott-street, Redfern, motor engineer, in connection with an agreement. The plaintiff alleged that it was agreed between him and the defendant that the latter, on receiving £10, would overhaul, repair, and place in good running order the plaintiff's motor car. Plaintiff contended that the defendant had so badly done the work that plaintiff will have to incur expense in alterations and repairs; £78 was claimed for damages.

The defence was that the defendant did not make the agreement as alleged, and that there was no contract between the parties. Mr. James, instructed by Messrs. Quinlan and Lee, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Norman Pilcher, instructed by Mr. Francis G. Clark, for the defendant. His Honor found a verdict for the plaintiff for £18.

COMMISSION CASE.

Busch v Street.

James Anders Busch, of Rushcutter Bay-road, Darlinghurst, boatshed proprietor, claimed £22 10s commission from Arthur Norman Street, of 36 Elizabeth Bay-road, Darlinghurst. The plaintiff claimed that he sold the defendant's motor launch, Petuna, for £450, and that, as agreed with the defendant, he was entitled to 5 per cent. commission on that sum. The defence was never indebted as alleged. Mr. Merewether, instructed by Messrs. Backhouse and Jeanneret, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. T. Rawlinson, of Messrs. Rawlinson and Hamilton, for the defendant. His Honor non-suited the plaintiff.

WILDEY v MULLIGAN.

David John Wildey, of Reiby-lane, Sydney, sued Edward Mulligan, of Anzac Cafe, King-street, Sydney. The plaintiff claimed £23 8s 9d, being his charge for 1500 cafe and wine checks supplied by him to the defendant. The defence was never indebted, and that the checks in question were not according to sample. Mr. W. F. Brennan appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. P. M. Sanders for the defendant.

A verdict was found for the plaintiff for the amount claimed.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Scholes.)

Mr. Herbert Harris, Crown Prosecutor.

ALLEGED FALSE PRETENCE.

Daniel Asher was charged that he falsely pretended to Daniel Denis Murphy that he was the owner, without lien, of certain furniture, at No. 212 Palmer-street, Sydney. By this pretence it was alleged that the accused obtained £40 from D. D. Murphy. Mr. P. K. White appeared for Asher who was bound over in his own recognisance in £50, to come up for sentence if called upon within twelve months.

APPEALS.

(Before Judge Backhouse.)

Albert Franklin, on November 23 last, at the Central Police Court, was sentenced to one month's imprisonment, in two cases of assaulting garrison military police. He appealed in person against this sentence, and asked that it be varied by the imposition of a fine. His Honor said that the sentence was a lenient one. He dismissed the appeal, and confirmed the decision of Mr. J. M'Kensey, S.M.

For offensive behaviour, John Fitzgerald was convicted by Mr. G. H. Smithers, S.M., at the Paddington Police Court, and fined £2 or two months' imprisonment. There was no appearance for the appellant, whose appeal was dismissed with £3 3s costs.

MEAT TRADE.

"FLOUTING THE COURT."

As soon as Mr. Justice Heydon took his seat on the Industrial Court Bench yesterday Mr. Coghlan (of Messrs. Cecil A. Coghlan and Co.) referred to the two last cases in the day's list, namely:—Minister for Labour and Industry v Australian Meat Industry Employees' Union, and same v T. Furse (secretary of the union), summons to show cause. Mr. Coghlan said he appeared for the respondents, and applied for an adjournment in both cases for a fortnight, in the following circumstances:—On Thursday last the Minister for Labour and Industry (Mr. Beeby) invited him, as solicitor of the union, to a consultation. This took place, and the result was that Mr. Beeby wrote a letter, making certain suggestions for the settlement of any industrial dispute or disturbance that might exist or was pending; and if a dispute existed, to prevent any further extension. He (Mr. Coghlan) subsequently attended a meeting of the executive, consisting of members of the amalgamated bodies. The executive having given full consideration to the Minister's letter, came to a recommendation giving their unqualified acceptance of the Minister's conditions. The Minister had since informed him that further steps had been taken to prevent the carcase butchers from boycotting certain retail shops. Neither Mr. Furse nor the executive of the union was responsible for that, and he suggested that in the best interests of the community the two matters might well be adjourned, Mr. Furse undertaking that a secret ballot should take place, not only of members of the union, who attended personally, but of the whole of the members of the union. In that way the whole of the members of the union would be able to express their views. If an adjournment for a fortnight was granted, he thought—as far as he was able to express an opinion—that the moderate members would be able to get their way. It was not intended by the executive to intensify the position, and Mr. Furse would give an undertaking not to take any steps himself and to prevent members from taking steps which would intensify the difficulty.

His Honor: I am tired of continually humouring men of whom it is said that their standard of intelligence is so low that they should not be judged by other people. I think the time has come when a little consideration should be shown to this Court, and I cannot see in what has been said, so far, anything that shows a proper attitude on the part of the union towards these alleged offences. I don't for a moment say that the offences alleged have been committed, but at present I cannot see why the matter should be postponed for a fortnight.

Mr. Coghlan: All I can say is that we propose to seek the Court's aid, and to show respect to the Court by controlling members of the union and giving them the benefit of recording their opinions by a secret vote. So far, the executive has done its best, but a ballot cannot be taken in 48 hours.

His Honor: I will not postpone the cases. Some reason for an adjournment may appear later on, but it has not been shown at present.

At a later stage Mr. Bavin said that if the officials of the union gave an undertaking that during the period of the adjournment asked for no butchers' shops would either directly or indirectly be interfered with, and that all embargoes with respect to the supply of meat to shops be withdrawn, he would consent to the adjournment asked for.

Mr. Chubb, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, appeared for the Minister, and moved for an order cancelling the registration of the union. He said that he would not oppose the adjournment if Mr. Furse gave the undertaking already asked for.

Mr. Coghlan said that Mr. Furse would give the undertaking as far as he was personally concerned, but he could not bind the members of his union.

Mr. Bavin said that as far as the matters in which he was retained were concerned, he would not accept such an undertaking.

Both penalty summonses were then allowed to stand over till the following day.

Mr. Chubb then moved to make absolute a rule nisi by which the Australian Meat Industry Employees' Union had been called upon to show cause why their certificate of regulation should not be cancelled, on the ground that the union had unlawfully endeavoured to compel certain master butchers to close their shops at 5 p.m. instead of 5.30 p.m., as provided in the amended award governing their industry. Mr. Coghlan appeared for the respondent union to show cause.

The affidavits filed in support of the application were again read, but no affidavits were read in reply.

Mr. Coghlan said that there was no proof of any attempt to instigate a strike, inasmuch as no strike had been proved. When Mr. Justice Edmunds made his award in October last the conditions of employment were to begin work at 6.30 a.m. and terminate at 5 p.m., and all the award did was to allow employers to change the conditions as to the hours of work. His Honor did not order the change to be made, and under section 69 of the Act such a change could not be effected without 21 days' previous notice. The employees were simply endeavouring to maintain the conditions and not to change them. That being so, there was no strike.

Mr. Chubb, on the other side, submitted that under section 8 (sub-section 7) of the Act his Honor had ample power to cancel the registration for any reason that appeared to the Court sufficient. He contended there was ample evidence before the Court upon which it could act.

His Honor reserved judgment.

BUILDINGS AND WORKS.

PROGRESS OF THE TRADE.

A.J.C. TOTALISATOR BUILDINGS.

In the office of Messrs. Robertson and Marks, architects, plans are being prepared for the totalisators which are to be erected at the Randwick Racecourse for the Australian Jockey Club. There will be three of these buildings, with the necessary boards attached. One will be erected in the paddock behind the official stand; the second will be erected in the St. Leger, and the third in the flat. The buildings connected with the totalisator on the paddock will be the most elaborate of the three. The plans for these show octagonal-shaped buildings at each end of a central or administrative block. This style of architecture will take up less space, and it will give more freedom to the people to move about from one position to another. The building will be 202ft long by 71ft in depth, and the height to the dome of the central block will be 50ft. In the central or administrative block there will be the dividend office, the commission office where persons betting large sums can invest, the manager's office, and stores, etc. On each wing is the octagonal-shaped building, consisting of 40 ticket selling windows in the front, and 30 paying out windows at the rear, as well as several windows to obtain change from. Outside these windows there are entrance and exit compartments, with turnstiles to prevent crowding. The ticket sellers and the pay-out clerks are within small compartments at the back of the windows, and as they sell a ticket they, at the same time, by means of a lever, register the amount on the totalisator board, which is formed in the wall at the foot of the clock tower, in the central building. In the centre of each of the octagonal-shaped buildings or wings is the bank, also octagonal in shape. In this bank the money is handled and made up into bundles to be sent along to the pay windows immediately the race is over. At the same time the money collected for the sale of tickets from that race is brought over to the bank, and sorted out, to be used to pay out at the conclusion of the race following.

The totalisator board to be erected in the St. Leger will be constructed on a plan somewhat similar to the board to be built in the paddock, but the former will be in brick work, while the board in the paddock will be as already stated, in re-inforced concrete. The St. Leger board will not be quite so large, or elaborately finished as the one in the paddock. The board to be built on the flat will be less elaborate than the other two, but the plans for this building have yet to be got out. Mr. Marks is pushing along with the work of preparing all the plans, and when the buildings are complete Randwick Racecourse will be equipped with the finest totalisating machines and buildings in the State.

CHAPTER XVIII.—Continued.

The Judge had looked steadily at the child. He said to himself that it ought to have been Rupert's child, not Malvern's. If it had been, life would have been easier to bear. His eyes had a fleeting vision of a future, even without Rupert, in which Rupert's boy should have figured. He had the art of being a grandfather rooted in him. Rupert's boy. He saw him a child, a sturdy youngster, a schoolboy at Eton—immensely popular as Rupert had been—a soldier—in the Coldstream, of course. The regiment of splendid traditions had been so cut up. It needed men. Where else should Rupert's son have been?

He came out of his dream. It could not have lasted very long, for Giulia was still holding the babe for his inspection, bidding him see how the tiny hand held fast to his finger.

A grey mist, a film, fell over his eyes. She saw it and was shocked. How hard he was taking it—still. She ought not to have brought him the baby. It was too much.

She went away to restore the child to its mother. Having laid the black-headed, cool, milky-smelling thing by Ida's side, she came back to the sitting-room of the nursing-home where she had left the Judge. He was gone.

As he went down to Holmehurst in the train he read his evening paper. While he opened it a sudden thought came to him of Sylvia Trehearne—he did not know her married name. He wondered where she was, how she was faring—whether the great sorrow had come to her too.

His thoughts went back to that August day of parting. He remembered Rupert's face leaning over the side as the boat slid through the water. He had had an idea at the time—a wild idea, of course—that Rupert did not see him. He had looked beyond him, or the father thought he had, for a moment. Of course it was not so. For whom else could Rupert have had eyes at the last moment but his father? The next minute he had been sure that the boy's gaze was for him only.

He had often noticed that having thought of one out of sight and out of mind some tidings of that person had soon followed. The evening sun was in the carriage, flooding it with warm radiance. He drew down the blind the better to read his paper. The first thing that leaped at him from the sheet was: "Mysterious Death of a Cornish Recluse."

He settled his spectacles—to the wearing of which he had taken only recently—on his nose, and began to read:—

"The St. Mawgan police were notified yesterday of the death of Mr. Lawrence Trehearne, a wealthy gentleman who had lived for many years at Carn Gluze, an isolated house on the Cornish coast, seeing no one and leading the life of a recluse. Mr. Trehearne had been an invalid for several years, but his death was quite unexpected. There were in the house with him at the time of his death a married niece, who, it is understood, offended her uncle deeply in the matter of her marriage, his nurse, Miss Smith, who had looked after him for some years, and his cook, Martha Polwhele. Rumour has it that sensational developments are expected."

"So," said the Judge aloud—he had the carriage to himself. "So. Sensational developments. That means suspicious circumstances. I wonder who inspired that paragraph. Nasty that about Sylvia's marriage offending her uncle. Poor child. She may need a friend. I've nothing special to do. I think I'll run down to Cornwall."

He gave orders that the carriage was to be ready to take him to the 9 o'clock train next morning—that his bag was to be packed, while Spunk watched him with an anxious face. Of late Spunk had spent a good deal of his time at Holmehurst without the light of his master's face, missing him, as did Simon, once of the "Hen and Chickens," who adored the Judge with an adoration which was a bond between him and Spunk.

The dog understood that his master was going away again. What had come to him? He had only just arrived. It was a new thing, this strange uneasiness which wandered from place to place and overclouded the lot of dogs and human satellites.

The Judge had complained once to Giulia, the only creature to whom he ever opened his heart, that Rupert never visited his dreams. "I am losing his face," he said, "his actual living face. In time I shall only keep his pictures made by hands, which is quite another matter."

That night, before his journey into Cornwall, at last he saw Rupert—not radiant and young, but worn and sorrowful, with eyes that pleaded dumbly.

The insistence of Rupert's eyes was with the Judge when he awoke. It was seven o'clock. He got up and plunged into the cold morning bath which he took all round the year. It was a beautiful morning. There was a haze of heat through which the sun sent a deep golden glow. A couple of Victoria plum-trees close to his window were covered with golden and pink plums. "The damask cheeks" made a burning bush of the little tree in the haze that was like a censer smoking.

He caught the ten o'clock train from Paddington. He had provided himself with literature at the bookstall, but it was rather a form than anything else. He had not got back his power of reading, of being absorbed in what he read. The stark reality of his own story—the immense drama of the war—seemed to make books unreal, except poetry, especially the poetry of the war, which he read eagerly, buying every new book which seemed to promise wound-wort for a heart that forever bled in the silence and darkness.

He ascertained that there was nothing further in the morning papers about Mr. Trehearne's death. His fellow-passengers did not interest him as they would have interested him of old. Withdrawn into himself, while the shining ribbon of the fields and woods and rivers and villages and towns was unrolled before the carriage windows, he had time to consider the quixotism of his action. Probably little Sylvia had other friends to comfort and help her in this hour of trouble. Her husband—ah, well, poor Sylvia might be a widow by this time. The husband would have had relations, friends. Still he was glad he had come, even busy-bodying. He was conscious of a queer, pleasurable feeling in the thought that he was going to see Sylvia. He wondered how the child had thriven. A soldier's child! The procession of his thoughts had brought him to the old pang. Everything had gone with Rupert. There was the peerage which he could have for the asking, whenever he went a step higher. What was it but dust and ashes? What was anything but dust and ashes for the man who had no son?

It was a fast train, and he had the luck to discover at St. Maur a motor for hire recently acquired by an enterprising innkeeper, so that he made the journey in good time, arriving at the dune overlooking Carn Gluze at about five o'clock.

The motor pulled up just where the dune began.

"Most folks prefer to walk from here," said the driver, in broad West-country speech. "I'll wait here and take ye back."

The Judge had not considered the question of getting back, which fact showed the absorption of his mind. It was not the first time he had acted on an impulse which might have seemed unreasonable to most people. Of course he must get back. Supposing he were not wanted, that there was really no reason for his intervention! He began to have glimpses of how other less imaginative people might regard this journey of his across England.

"Better wait!" he said. "I shall be going back presently."

He walked across the dry, sandy grass of the dune and descended the steep path to Carn Gluze and the bay. His eye, while he was yet at the top, was caught by the lantern light a-top of the house, which gleamed crimson red reflecting the sun going down in a coppery haze.

"By jove," he said to himself, "what a light that might throw out to sea! With a proper manipulation of screens and shutters it might be invisible from the land."

The grey stone house, which showed no windows on the side towards the path, looked to the Judge's mind sinister and forbidding. He remembered just such a house—at Westcombe. That was one of the unsolved mysteries hidden away in his memory. The ordinary comfortable house, the ugly woman who showed it unwillingly, the room with the clinging smell of disinfectants—and something else, sharp and terrible between—the smell of the new wood of a coffin. The woman had hanged herself in an outhouse an hour later, leaving her mystery for ever unsolved.

That house, too, had turned a blank face to the roadway.

He pushed through the little swing gate which led on to the bridge crossing to the house. There was one weakness in this man of many strengths. He dreaded heights. It was a dread he had never yielded to, had thought to conquer by steady resistance, but he had never conquered it.

Now he looked over the edge of the abyss with an involuntary shudder. A nasty fall it would be down there among the rocks between which a stream, thin now, was stealing. Then he noticed something under his feet—a couple of new planks had been put in the bridge. The new wood caught his eye. He said to himself that the whole structure must be pretty rotten. It ought to be an iron bridge.

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

PRICE OF CHAFF.

The recent quotations for wheaten chaff as sold at Alexandria market are something in the nature of a tragedy from the standpoint of the farmer that grew the crop. Chaff at £2/15/ to £3 or even £3/10/ per ton simply means that the farmer is working at a loss under present conditions. This is evident when the following figures are considered. To market chaff in Sydney the farmer is under certain inescapable expenses. It will cost him 12/ per ton for cutting, 16/ for bags, on an average about 10/ for freight, and 5/ for cartage in the country (these figures are on the moderate side), 3/6 cartage in the city, and (say) 3/ commission—a total of £2/9/6 per ton. It does not require much knowledge to show that the farmer cannot allow for interest on the value of his land, or rent, the cost of cultivation, sowing, harvesting, carting, and stacking his crop, in addition to the above expenditure, and sell his chaff at £3 or £3/10/ per ton and make a profit. The position, therefore, is a very serious one. Many farmers are sending chaff to Sydney at the present time and selling it at a loss, or at the best are being sweated mercilessly for the benefit of city buyers. If a farmer does practically the bulk of his own work, and works from early morning till late at night, doing his own harvesting, as far as possible, and his own carting to the railway, he might make bread and butter out of it, but it would only be by what the ordinary unionist would characterise as abject sweating—he would be working inordinately long hours and receiving very little for it.

The trouble is that the country is full of hay and full of farmers who have gone through a very bad time, and cannot afford to hold their hay until prices improve. It will certainly pay to hold the hay in the stack. If the farmer is not in the position to do so would it not be a fair thing for the State to arrange an advance against the hay, to allow him to escape being the victim of a glutted market? Within the last two or three years we have seen the Government without hesitation interfere with the ordinary channels of trade in the interests of the consumer, and prevent the farmer obtaining what was considered an unduly high price for his product. Farmers have been prevented from sending their pigs and wheat and lucerne out of the State, and compelled to take a lower price locally as a result. Now, as far as chaff is concerned, the position is reversed, and it seems but common justice that the State should intervene to protect the farmer, as it previously intervened to protect the consumer. We feel confident that it will be found that the Department of Agriculture will not continue marketing chaff from the Government farms at the present price, although it is understood to have a large supply in hand. It will hold the hay in the stack, knowing full well that sooner or later it will be sold at a profit. The same will be the case with farmers financially strong enough to hold. It will be the small man, badly buffeted by the circumstances of the last three seasons that will suffer unless the Government can see its way to help him. The demands upon the Government at present are many, we know, and the financial burden is heavy, but it should be a comparatively small matter to protect the chaffgrowers. It at least deserves full consideration. It is not in the best interests of the community that the farmers should be compelled to sell what is an actual necessary in the conduct of commerce and industry at a loss.

BULK HANDLING.

WHY HAVE ELEVATORS?

Mr. C. M'Clure writes:—The natural headlands around the harbour are suitable for gravitation. With large bins erected around these headlands, with several shoots erected at certain angles to suit ships' hatches, railways could be laid to the bins, where trucks of wheat could be run into the bins, ready for loading. There need not be elaborate wharfs, as a few mooring piles or dolphins driven for ships to come alongside, with access to the shore would be sufficient. Throughout the country in the wheat areas, elevators would be needed to take the wheat from the farmers, and to run it into trucks for transit to the bins. I have been through Canada, and noted the position of elevators, mostly erected on level country. I have also been in the United States. Forty-two years ago I was carpenter of a ship that loaded bulk wheat at an elevator on the banks of the Sacramento. We loaded 2000 tons in 24 hours. In no place in either Canada or the United States have I seen such natural facilities for export loading as in Sydney Harbour. Therefore, I think it would be an unwarranted expense to the country to erect elevators where natural gravitation in bins would answer the purpose.

BUSH FIRES.

"Underwriter" writes:—Referring to the paragraph in the "Herald" with regard to bush fires caused by sparks from locomotives and the precautions the Railway Commissioners advise they are taking, as one of the public very much concerned at the increasing danger each year of the firing of the crop country through this cause it would be very interesting to me to know how it is possible for an engine-driver to "take every precaution to see that sparks or live coal do not escape from their engines"; and, further, what spark arrester is considered an efficient one by the department. So far as I know, the only "precaution" taken in the direction of spark arresting consists of wire netting or perforated plates in the smokebox, which I understand have at any time been found of very little efficacy.

I am informed that a type of spark arrester is at present being used on the suburban traffic in Queensland, which completely eliminates both the danger and nuisance caused by cinders being emitted from the locomotive. It would be interesting to know what is being done by our Commissioners in the direction of having trials made of a similar apparatus. A live spark will travel hundreds of yards; and whilst precautions are taken by farmers of ploughing round the boundary of their crops near the railway line, even then it is impossible to overcome the danger of devastation of the countryside by fires caused in this way.

A Royal Commission was recently held in Western Australia dealing with this very subject, and conclusively showed that methods of preventing sparks by the use of wire netting or perforated plates were futile. Certainly the coal used in the west is more liable to sparking than that which is used in the service here.

FOREST FIRES.

"Timber" writes:—An interesting contribution on this subject from Mr. Charles Robinson of Woodlands appears in the "Sydney Morning Herald" of the 9th inst., the trend of which is to show the difficulties of any effective measure in afforestation or fire protection without public co-operation, and in this Mr. Robinson hits the right nail on the head. All public movements require co-operative effort, system, and organisation, and whether the aim be to advance afforestation or to protect our forest resources from damage by fire, full efficiency cannot be secured unless the public mind be educated to co-operative effort.

In the particular question of fire, the people generally do not realise what injury is done; indeed, a large section of the community believe that bush fires do more good than harm, and in these circumstances the difficulties of preventive measures, whether it be the Forestry Commission with its lands or the holders of private estates with theirs, are enormously increased by the carelessness and disregard of adjoining landholders and the public at large. What we fail to realise in Australia is the harm that is done by unregulated fire, and the best evidence of that is its repeated outbreak and the inefficiency of our general fire laws with their superficial administration.

What Mr. Hutchens, as an eminent authority, preaches about the deterioration of forest growth and soils by repeated fires is well known to all foresters and men of scientific thought, but that makes no appeal to the man who wants to provide a little green feed for his stock by firing dry herbage, regardless of the sacrifice of other interests. No doubt the Forestry Commission at great effort and cost may succeed in protecting its forest country, or a good portion of it, by fire regulations, fire lines, and careful administration, but the general fire question will always remain a menace until the people themselves take up the question in some practical way. America, for instance, found that by propaganda work a great deal was possible, but that country only secured the high measure of efficiency in fire protection that it has to-day by general legislation to enforce a system, and by organising public interest and co-operation to give it effect. There the whole country is divided into fire districts in charge of wardens with plenary powers to administer the fire laws, and the organisation of districts embraces all public bodies and associations affected by fire risk, who are bound to render personal and material assistance in both preventive and combative measures.

The question of fire protection is of such general importance that it is amazing to find public apathy regarding it, and it is one that might well be taken up by our country shires and municipalities with the object of bringing about better legislation and more adequate administration with organisation. Until that be done it is feared we shall continue to suffer enormous loss from the ravage of bush fires.

THE WHEAT POSITION.

"INDUSTRY VERGING ON COLLAPSE."

The president, Mr. N. Graham, the hon. secretary, Mr. O. J. Newson, and the hon. treasurer, Mr. R. Gibson, of the Murrumburrah branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association, have issued a circular drawing attention to the position of the wheat industry, in the course of which they state:—"If ever an industry has been tinkered with by our politicians and officials, all amateurs, when competent, hard-headed business men were required, it has occurred with our wheat; and even recognising that the pooling of the wheat was the best thing under the circumstances. We trust that your branch will do your utmost to get a price of 4s 6d fixed at the nearest railway station, to be paid cash like the wool; the Minister for Agriculture to be a practical man; and that the city press send representatives to ascertain the crisis at present existing in wheat-growing, verging on a collapse. To give work, and to supply the needs of the Empire, wheat-growing should be boomed by our legislators instead of killed, as at present."

SHEEP-FLY PEST.

Mr. H. E. Kater, M.L.C., writes:—Most country men know that the policeman fly kills the small black fly, it is important that they should now say whether they have observed the policeman fly killing the green blowfly, and whether they, at the same time, have observed that upon the appearance of the policeman fly the green blowfly has diminished in number. I have little doubt that this year's experience with the green blowfly shows that the sheep industry will be destroyed unless we can find means of killing the blowfly, and I can think of no better plan than burning or burying all carrion and the carcases of all dead animals. This would prevent the fly from breeding, and, after all, the thing to do is to attack the fly, rather than try to keep him at a distance by smearing your sheep with poisonous mixtures, which have little real effect. My plan would be costly, but nothing compared with that of dressing the sheep, plus the loss by death, which will increase each year until we can reduce the number of blowflies, and, surely the way to reduce them is to attack their breeding grounds, which are dead animals, poisoned rabbits being the worst offenders. Every dead rabbit is the home for thousands of maggots, every one of which may be a blowfly capable of doing untold damage to sheep. To sum up, we have for years been breeding blowflies by providing them with poisoned rabbits, which are the best home for the maggots, because the skin protects them from the sun. Now, let us stop this stupid folly.

Mr. Frank C. Snodgrass writes:—I read so many letters from pastoralists and their managers about this fly pest that I cannot refrain from drawing their attention to the fact that though the various dips seem not to give the satisfaction they hope for, there may be other remedies. I send you the following: One kerosene tin of clear fat or lard, one quart Stockholm tar, one quart turpentine, 2lb or 3lb insectbane or insecticide. Render down and stir well, and apply to parts of the sheep and lambs, as any practical man knows how to do. This at least kills the fly deposits and flies, when they come in contact with the sheep, and protects the sheep itself. You can't kill all the flies in the country. You might as well try to kill the ticks, ants, or fleas; but you can protect the sheep, small flocks or valuable studs. Sheep have multiplied exceedingly since the days of Governor Macarthur, and my grandfather, and with their increase should come scientific knowledge how to protect them from various troubles, and if the Government botanist studied the question of plants similar to those insectibane is manufactured from I am positive many would be found out here in 'old Australia."

FRUITGROWING.

"Lemon-grower" writes:—A few weeks ago having some choice lemons on hand, which had been cured by the Italian process, I sent them to the Sydney market and realised 6s per case, whilst the foreign article was bringing 18s. My experience was only that of many others in the Gosford district, which is the home of the superior lemon. A neighbour who sends excellent apples to market realised 3s per case for choices, whilst the imported article was fetching 17s. The imported apple was at the time of very inferior quality as compared to the choicest local apples. My opinion is that as 90 per cent. of the retail fruit shops of Australia are run by foreigners they favour their own country's goods to our detriment.

BONUS ON CROWS.

CARCOAR.—At a meeting of the Carcoar Pastures Protection Board the Canonbar board asked if the board would favour a uniform bonus of 2d per head being paid for crows. The board decided to inform the Canonbar board that if the bonus were raised to 6d it would co-operate. It was pointed out that in 1912 the Carcoar board urged all boards to pay a uniform bonus of 1s per head for crows, recognising the great danger to flocks by the steady increase of this pest. At that time the Carcoar board was paying a bonus of 6d, which it then increased to 8d, and has paid that amount ever since. As proof that the higher bonus has been successful in decreasing the number of crows, it was pointed out that in the year 1915 the board paid out on 5385 crows, while for the year just closed it was only called upon to pay the bonus on 2703 crows.

BULLI DISTRICT.

BULLI.—The persistent showery conditions of the past two weeks have produced a phenomenal growth in pasturage and vegetation throughout the district. The stock, in consequence of this, are looking in excellent condition and farmers are now busy ploughing to sow winter fodder for cattle. The grass has not grown so high, an old resident states, for 30 years. Paspalum grass has already reached about six feet in height, and the salt bush has increased so much as to be a nuisance to many who would desire to put in crops of other classes. The plums that can be seen here are the largest yet grown, the Japanese variety reaching an enormous size, but the recent hailstorm has considerably damaged the fruit. The blackberry industry is now in full swing, several tons having already been sent to Sydney jam factories, but the recent rains will not have a beneficial effect on the fruit, and the demand this year is not as keen as was expected.

BATHURST BURR.

FORBES.—The Bathurst burr has been a great bane to the landholder along the river, or wherever flood waters found their way during the late flood period. Burrs have sprung up in places never known to have been infested before, and the general opinion is that the upper reaches of the river must be densely covered with the pest.

DISEASE IN TOMATOES.

BIG LOSSES LOCALLY.

YOUNG.—A disease commonly known as "rosette," which makes its appearance in tomatoes in abnormal seasons, such as the present, has caused very large losses in this district this year. The fruit, instead of forming properly, seems to be composed of half fruit and half leaves. Tomatoes not badly affected only half ripen, the other half, on the side opposite the stem, retaining green patches resembling leaves. Where the disease is very marked the fruit splits and doubles over, leaving the seeds outside and the skin inside. Mr. S. A. Thornell, the local fruit inspector, has spent two or three days on a big patch at Mr. Eastley's experimenting, with a view of combating the pest. Treating it as a fungus disease, he tried strong solutions of Bordeaux mixture, and lime and sulphur, and also experimented with dry lime and powdered sulphur. But none of it took effect. On the assumption that possibly the fruit was getting too much sap, Mr. Thornell next tried ringbarking the plant, but this was also unsuccessful. The only hope seems to be to chop the plant right out, and thousands have so been dealt with. Mr. Thornell now believes that the alternate hot and cold changes are responsible. A hot day may commence the ripening process in the fruit at one spot, and a succeeding cold change may then allow the sap to approach another, and prevent its ripening.

NOWRA SHOW.

NOWRA.—The Nowra show takes place on Wednesday and Thursday. The secretary reports a record number of entries.

CITY COUNCIL EMPLOYEES.

POSITION OF STREET CLEANERS.

The City Council at its meeting last night adopted the Lord Mayor's minute on the employment of youths in the service of the council when they have attained the age of 21.

Alderman Sir Allen Taylor, who opened the discussion, said that the employees under consideration were youths engaged in pavement sweeping and block cleaning. The position had been put plainly by the Lord Mayor. There was the alternative of paying adult wages to the block boys when they reached the age of 21 or dispensing with their services. He agreed with the Lord Mayor that there should be a medical examination so as to ascertain physical fitness or unfitness.

Alderman Burke said it would not be fair to turn block boys adrift if their health and strength had been undermined by street sweeping, especially at night.

The Lord Mayor assured Alderman Burke that no block boy would be dismissed on account of the minute. The question of paying adult wages would be referred to the wages board.

Alderman Kelly expressed the opinion that the occupation of street sweeping had become an unhealthy one on account of the shortage of water. There should be double the volume of water if the dust evil was to be got rid of.

Alderman Bridge said that, in addition to the medical examination suggested by the Lord Mayor, the council should insist on its employees insuring their lives, so that there would be some provision for dependents in case of death.

The Lord Mayor said he had given the matter of insurance his attention, and would shortly issue a minute on the subject.

A motion approving of the minute was agreed to without division.

MILITARY APPOINTMENTS.

A ROSEVILLE ROLL OF HONOUR

A large congregation was present at the Roseville Methodist Church on Sunday morning when a roll of honour of soldiers connected with the church was unveiled. Fifteen names were inscribed on a handsome tablet of Queensland maple, and included those of Lieut. Clarence Collier and Arthur Wheen, D.C.M. Both of these were local soldiers who fought at Pozieres, since which battle Lieut. Collier has been posted missing. The name of the late organist also appeared on the tablet. Major S. A. Roberts, a Roseville officer, who fought at Gallipoli, was present. The ceremony of unveiling the tablet was performed by Mrs. Chandler, of Roseville, a mother of one of the lads.

BITTEN BY SNAKE.

Yesterday afternoon a crate containing a consignment of snakes was being carted along George-street, city, when one of the reptiles escaped, and fell to the roadway. Ernest Williams (45), a labourer, who lives in King-street, Newtown, immediately rushed towards the snake, intending to recapture it. Before he could succeed in grasping it, however, he was bitten upon the right hand.

A traffic constable then came upon the scene, and killed the reptile with his baton.

Williams was treated by the Civil Ambulance, and then conveyed to Sydney Hospital, where he was admitted for observation.

YOUTHFUL STRIKERS.

FURTHER TROUBLE AT GLASS WORKS.

Further trouble with the employees of the Australian Glass Bottle Manufacturing Company at Alexandria and Waterloo occurred yesterday. The works manager stated that shortly after the labourers who ceased work last week had resumed, the boys who are employed as assistants to the glass-blowers, and numbering about a hundred, made a request for an all-round increase in wages of a shilling a day. The demand was refused, and they "downed tools." The strike of the boys will have the effect of rendering the glass blowers idle, as well as those men who resumed work during the morning. The works manager also pointed out that the boys concerned, whose ages ranged from 16 to 20, were already in receipt of wages up to 8s a day.

The precipitate action of the youths does not appear to have met with the approval of the men employed as glass blowers, as they are stated to have taken immediate steps to approach the management with a view to bringing about a speedy settlement.

TRAWLER DISPUTE.

The problem of effecting a settlement of the industrial trouble associated with the State trawling industry was brought a step nearer a solution on Saturday, when a conference of representatives of the Seamen's Union, the Merchant Guild, the Australian Institute of Marine Engineers, the Masters and Engineers' Association, the Marine Cooks and Federated Stewards and Pantrymen's Unions was held at the office of the Minister for Labour and Industry, Mr. G. S. Beeby. The conference finally agreed to submit to a Judge of the Arbitration Court the matters in dispute. In the meantime work on the trawlers will go on as at present, and the matter involving the constitution of the crews on the boats will again receive attention immediately the decision of the arbitrator has been made known.

ALLEGED THEFT OF FURS.

At the Water Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Barnett, S.M., Henry Claude Jones, 27, wharf labourer, was charged with stealing furs valued at £1000, the property of the Union Steamship Company of New Zealand.

Sergeant White prosecuted for the Crown, and Mr. Leslie Gannon appeared for the defence.

John Ramsay, a detective, stated that he showed the accused two fur coats, and told him that they were portion of the goods which it was alleged he had stolen. Witness went on board a vessel, and the chief officer handed over to him a broken packing-case, cardboard boxes, a catalogue, and a white fox skin, which had been found in the bunkers of the ship.

Emanuel Marks, a dyer and cleaner of Clarence-street, Sydney, stated that he had known the accused for about 12 months. About Christmas time accused called at his shop and told him that he (accused) had two ladies' sample fur coats to sell. Witness said, "Bring them along and I will have a look at them." When witness next saw accused the latter said that he had left the parcel at a barber's shop for him. Witness then went to the shop, and removed the parcel, but did not open it. He made an appointment during the week, and on the following Saturday witness again saw the accused, and asked him the price of the fur coats, and it was eventually decided that he should pay £10.

The Magistrate: Did you not think it necessary to ask him where he got the coats from?—I have known him for some time. Witness added that he had treated the transaction as an honourable deal. Witness paid the accused £4 then and £5 on the following Monday, and the balance a week later. He never got a receipt for the money.

Thos. Cooper, a furrier, carrying on business in Collins-street, Melbourne, stated that he had purchased furs in Canada to the value of £1500. On his arrival in Australia he discovered that only one case had reached his home. The two coats produced in court were similar to those which he had bought in Canada.

Accused reserved his defence, and was committed for trial. An application for a reduction in bail was made by Mr. Gannon. The magistrate remarked that the offence which was alleged to have been committed by the accused was becoming frequent and serious. Bail was reduced from £2000 to £1000, or two sureties of £500.

Mr. GEO. L. GOODMAN, the well-known theatrical manager, writes:—"I found Clements Tonic invaluable for insomnia. After taking it I enjoy sound, refreshing sleep every night."—Advt.

LANE'S EMULSION

Lung healer,
Body builder.

Thousands gratefully testify to the exceptional lung-strengthening and body-building merits of Lane's Emulsion. Medical men prescribe it and use it in their own households. Its medicinal virtues and curative powers are far in advance of anything else used for the same purpose.

It is composed of the finest ingredients; makes rich, pure blood; gives sound, firm flesh, and drives away harmful health-destroying germs.

Never be without it. Take it yourself, and give it to your children on the first signs of illness or weakness.

Here is just one instance of what Lane's has done in thousands of cases.

"My son when 5 years old suffered from some trouble of the lungs, and the best doctors were unable to do anything for him. Acting on a friend's advice I procured a bottle of Lane's Emulsion, and can honestly say that from the first dose he made most remarkable improvement.

"We persevered with the Emulsion, and even now our home is never without a bottle. My boy's trouble was no ordinary cold. About every week he would have an attack of violent coughing, and we used to have as many as two large towels covered with blood and thick phlegm, but thank your Emulsion for my being able to say that never once since the night when he had his first dose has the blood appeared. It would do your eyes good to see him now, he is so strong and rosy, and a walking advertisement for Lane's Emulsion. Both my wife and myself wish to thank you from our hearts for this great cure, and I am sure we would not have our boy to-day had it not been for your grand remedy.

"Yours very gratefully,
"Whangarei, N.Z." "W. T. SNOWDEN."

Do not be deceived into accepting a substitute—get Lane's. Sold by all storekeepers and chemists. Price 2/6 and 4/6 per bottle. The large bottle is the most economical, as it contains more than two of the small ones. If you have trouble in getting it, write direct to E. G. LANE, Box 864, G.P.O., Sydney. But in any case be sure and write for highly valuable booklet, giving vital information concerning out-door-living, the care of consumptives, and how generally to keep in health.

Lane's Emulsion is manufactured by E. G. LANE, of Oamaru, N.Z., a graduate chemist.

RUSSIA AND THE PACIFIC.

In a letter published some days ago in our columns the Consul-General for Russia warned the people of Australia not to allow the stress of war to prevent them from considering certain commercial problems which must be settled soon after the conclusion of peace. The Consul-General was thinking particularly of the means of entering those Russian markets which remain vacant since the expulsion of German traders; but his advice applies to a whole series of questions, of which trade with Russia is only one, though probably the most important. Mr. Braddon, in his speech yesterday afternoon, showed how the establishment of communication with Siberian ports may be linked up with the development of our interests in the Pacific. In the future the trade routes will be no longer menaced by a hostile navy, as they were when Germany had many of the best ports under her control, and a series of high-powered wireless stations connecting Rabaul, Yap, Samoa, and Tsingtao. We have Mr. Long's assurance that her colonies in the Pacific will never be restored to Germany, and we may be confident that in the future there will be genuine competition for trade in all ports. It follows that the interests of this country in the Pacific Islands will be greatly increased if only a satisfactory solution is found of the labour difficulty which troubles every island except our own territory of New Guinea. But obviously the most attractive prospect to be found in the idea of trade with Russian ports is the terminus of a Pacific line. M. d'Abaza thinks we may send both raw material and manufactured goods. We have sent agricultural implements to the Argentine in competition with American factories, and we may send them to Manchuria. But we should have thought that the cost of land transport would compel us to send the raw material—wool, metals, and copra—hitherto treated in Germany to a European port, if not to Constantinople, then to England to be transhipped.

As soon as we realise the possibilities of these new markets we can realise the necessity of immediate and diligent study. There are some questions which only a War Council or an Imperial Conference can discuss with much profit. The Imperial Government having taken the advice of the dominions, will decide what the control of the Islands is to be, and how a supply of labour can be found. The French and British Governments between them will prevent the New Hebrides from remaining a possible source of friction between the two peoples. But there is a great deal of preparation for the future which can be done by private individuals. Someone in Australia must acquire a first-hand knowledge of the wants of Russian traders, and he must before beginning his task have a knowledge of business methods and of some foreign language. The Russian authorities have recognised the value of information and research by appointing an Australian committee, with the co-operation of the Commonwealth Government, and arranging for it to co-operate with an information bureau in Petrograd. But they have begun in the wrong quarter. Sydney is the port in which information on this and kindred subjects can most easily be found and applied. The only committee which can hope for good results must be appointed from among Sydney business men. The University of Sydney can do most valuable work in helping to open new markets through its schools of languages and economics. Business men and students will find themselves greatly helped by the Russian agencies appointed to assist in the emancipation of Russia from Germany. The very difficult questions of trading banks and Government credit have already been approached in Russia in light of the experience gained under German tutelage, as well as the more obvious problems of transport to centres where new factories must be established.

THE SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN.

No higher compliment has ever been paid to British seamen than the confidence with which the nation has prepared itself for the German campaign of ruthless destruction. As usual the effects aimed at by the German Government were psychological as well as material. They hoped to terrorise seamen to such an extent that they would refuse to take their vessels to sea, and to destroy so many ships of all classes that there would be no means of transporting food to Great Britain if and when sailors were available. To some extent they have been successful in the first of their aims. In some neutral countries ships have been forbidden to go to sea, either in deference to German threats or through fear of provoking an international crisis. But in England the mercantile marine has appreciated its own value in the scheme of national defence, and has behaved as if its members were as truly engaged in the defence of their country as the soldiers in the trenches. We are told that many of the crews of torpedoed ships have applied to be signed on again with all possible speed, following the example set by the captain of the Crecy at the beginning of the war. To them it is quite clear that the German threat will add no terrors to those which have been faced by British sailors for many months. The Germans themselves, with their own objects to serve, will make a great deal of their new ruthlessness; but they will be hard put to it to add any new brutality to the shelling of non-combatant passengers, which was practised after the destruction of the Falaba, the Arabic, the Ancona, and many other vessels.

The implicit confidence placed in the navy is an interesting comment on the scare which was raised after the recent attack on the Channel transports. The nation is now asked to believe that effective measures will be taken, though it cannot be told what those measures are, and has the daily toll of losses visible before it. Evidently it believes without hesitation. No doubt two years' experience has taught the British people that, though they hear only of losses, there are thousands of vessels entering their ports in safety. They hear of one large vessel lost among a number of small ones, but they know that many others are bearing cargoes carefully restricted to the articles most needed for consumption and manufacture. The German people are said to be fully convinced that Great Britain will be starved into peace. But they have been promised so often that many of them must have become sceptical of this form of consolation. England was to have been submarined before, it was afterwards to have been destroyed by Zeppelins, and to have been reduced to a compromise by peace proposals. The spectacle of an enemy determined and well nourished after a week of ruthlessness may well beget doubts of the wisdom of the party who have now fastened their will on the Government. Some comfort may be derived from the idea that in the near future an Englishman's food may be distributed by a food controller. But Englishmen will believe that the navy and the armed merchantmen will have done their work before rationing becomes necessary. Englishmen have learned to submit to many things which would have been repudiated in time of peace. But a community of which the average wealth has been so recently increased will take very unkindly to a system of rations. It will prefer to rely on the science and courage of the navy, or the bravery of the mercantile marine, and on the methods by which Mr. Prothero will increase the production of the farmers and limit their profits.

REPATRIATION.

It is undeniably of prime importance that whatever steps are to be taken to repatriate returned soldiers should be accelerated as much as possible. There are two fairly obvious reasons why there should be no undue delay. First of all, it is essential that those charged with this duty should gather their experience before the war is over and the rush back fairly sets in. Secondly, it is supremely important that those who now contemplate enlisting should see no signs of our growing cold on our promise. If more men are to be induced to go to the front it must be made very clear to them that those who have already done their bit are not being neglected, and that the early promises are being fulfilled as quickly as practicable. What is involved was disclosed at the meeting of the Immigration League yesterday, when Mr. J. C. Watson, who has given special attention to this problem, said that it was now estimated that it would cost the Government £1000 to settle each soldier on the land, and that 25 per cent. of those who had gone away had intimated that they would like some land when they came back. All these will not come back; and some, when they do come back, will be unfit to till the soil. To that extent the repatriation movement, as applied to land settlement, will be relieved; but as against this there will be others who, though when they enlisted had no intention of going on the land, will wish to do so on their return, because they will find the humdrum life behind city counters, in banks, or in Government offices most irksome after the more exciting, and in some respects freer, atmosphere of the camp and the field. It is therefore fairly clear that if Mr. Watson's estimate be reasonably borne out a score of millions or more of money may easily be required to carry out this purpose.

The problem of repatriation is twofold. It presents difficulties of finance, and a further set of difficulties arise when the necessary money is raised. It will be remembered that the Prime Minister some time ago promised to find twenty millions sterling for this purpose. Later on it was proposed to obtain the first ten millions through a levy upon wealth. Now there are indications that the principle of a direct tax upon capital is not acceptable to some members of the National party, and that it is therefore likely to be dropped. While this, if true, will be an immediate relief to taxpayers already over-burdened with the weight of taxation, it is merely postponing the evil day, for, by some means or another, a much larger sum must be raised. It has been urged that, as the outlay in this case does not mean a permanent loss of capital, as is the case with purely war expenditure, but partakes rather of an advance to the returned soldier, and not a gift outright, the proper principle would be to do what is necessary by means of borrowed money. There is a good deal to be said in favour of this plan, for, though it may be difficult to get borrowed money at the moment, that would be much less difficult than to get the same amount by way of direct taxation. The British Government can be depended upon to assist materially even before the war is over, and probably to a much larger extent afterwards. And, as any scheme will probably include the settlement of British soldiers on lands in the dominions, we will have a better claim than ever if we widely open our doors to those who fought side by side with our own men in the trenches in France and in the deserts of Egypt. So it may be conceded that the financial difficulties, though important, are not likely to prove insuperable. The other obstacles that will have to be faced resolutely are of quite a different character. One rests in the fact that those States from which the bulk of the Australian expeditionary forces were withdrawn—that is, New South Wales and Victoria—have little or no land available in the hands of the Crown; while some of the other States, for instance Queensland and Western Australia, which supplied fewer men, have a good deal. The difficulty must then arise as to whether returned soldiers from, say, this State will be willing to settle, say, in Queensland; and whether, even if they are personally willing, the Government of this State will relish losing them. Of course land could be resumed from private owners, and already that system has been commenced. But that means adding very much to the expense, possibly so much as to make the scheme impracticable. No doubt these difficulties will be resolutely faced and gradually overcome. It behoves those returned soldiers who can do so to help themselves, for there will be so many who cannot that in any case the Government has a heavy task before it.

PARK FILCHING.

It had been thought after the Ministerial statement of a week or two back that the last had been heard of the attempt to filch portion of the Domain for a venereal clinic. No one imagined that the happy day had at length arrived in which Governments and other bodies would cease to cast envious eyes upon the city's green spaces. That will probably never arrive, but it was reasonable to expect that once the Cabinet had come to a decision in a particular case there would be no immediate reneging. Now it would seem, from the tenor of the interview with the Minister for Health yesterday, that the matter is to crop up in another form. Mr. Fitzgerald will not hesitate, he says, to extend Sydney Hospital temporarily into the Domain. All we can do on this, as on the previous occasion, is to oppose anything of this sort in the strongest possible terms. Most emphatically we protest against any such scheme, temporary or otherwise. There is absolutely nothing in the suggestion that the health of the sick is of paramount importance. That it is important we admit; but the sick and the maimed can be helped quite effectively without encroaching upon the Domain, which, as one of the lungs of the city, helps to prevent the city from becoming sick. Prevention is ever preferable to cure. In this case, however, that measure of prevention which is secured through the presence of open spaces in the city may be obtained without in any way sacrificing the curative benefits of hospital attendance at some more suitable spot. If Sydney Hospital is crowded out and there is no alternative between shifting it to another site and turning patients away, then it should be shifted rather than the Domain should be in any way sacrificed. That a venereal clinic, of all things, or a hospital laundry, or some other abomination, should be set up in the people's chief park is unthinkable, and must never be allowed.

PERSONAL.

At a meeting of the City Council last night the Lord Mayor (Alderman R. D. Meagher) paid a tribute to Alderman Arthur M'Elhone, who has been a member of the council for 18 years, and who for the past 14 years has occupied the position of chairman of the works committee. Alderman Farrell is the new chairman. A resolution expressing appreciation of Alderman M'Elhone's public services as head of the works committee was carried unanimously. It was decided to have the council's recognition engrossed on vellum and presented to Alderman M'Elhone.

At the close of the annual meeting of the Sydney School of Arts last night a portrait of the president, Mr. W. Reid, was unveiled in the committee-room. Mr. R. B. Barton, a vice-president, stated that Mr. Reid had been president of the institution for 16 years, a member of the committee for 30 years, and a member of the School of Arts for 52 years. He was a highly respected citizen, having spent 52 years in the service of the Australian Bank of Commerce (formerly known as the Australian Joint Stock Bank), from which he lately retired, and every member of the institution wished him many years in which to enjoy the rest he had so well earned.

Mr. Clive V. Ramaciotti, who since his father, Brigadier-General Ramaciotti, C.M.G., V.D., has been District Commandant in New South Wales, has acted as his secretary, was presented yesterday morning with a gold watch and platinum chain by Mr. Trumble, Secretary for Defence. In asking Mr. Ramaciotti to accept the gift, Mr. Trumble stated that it was made on behalf of the Minister for Defence as some slight acknowledgement of his services. Senator Pearce also forwarded a letter, expressing his appreciation of Mr. Ramaciotti's work. The watch bears the inscription: "Presented to C. V. Ramaciotti, Esq., by the Department of Defence, Australia, in grateful appreciation of services rendered, 1915-17."

Lieutenant Frank Smith, who for some time has acted as A.D.C., to the Brigadier-General Ramaciotti, District Commandant, is going abroad. Lieutenant Smith is one of the "Fighting Thirteenth," and was wounded at the original landing at Gallipoli, and after a long period in hospital was invalided home to Australia.

Mr. Barnett, postmaster at West Maitland, has received a cable message from France informing him that his son, Lieutenant F. G. Barnett, has been promoted captain. Captain Barnett left Sydney as second lieutenant, and was promoted first lieutenant in Egypt. He was at Gallipoli for five months, principally at Quinn's Post. He has been some time in France, and about two months ago was made adjutant of his battalion. Before enlisting Captain Barnett was manager of the Government Savings Bank at Corowa.

It was announced at the meeting of the British Immigration League, yesterday, that Mr. H. P. Williams would act as hon. secretary during the absence of Mr. T. E. Easton, who is leaving for England in March.

PORTUGAL.

MESSAGE TO AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

A message has been received by the Governor-General (through the Secretary of State for the Colonies) from the Government of the Portuguese Republic in response to the New Year's greetings from Australia. Sincere wishes are expressed for the prosperity and happiness of the Commonwealth, and the message concludes:—"The Government of Portugal is particularly pleased to hear that Portugal's co-operation on land and sea with the British Empire is appreciated. It is, in fact, Portugal's keen desire to co-operate as much as possible in the great effort required from all Allied nations in order to secure the complete victory which alone can lead us to lasting peace."

GREETINGS TO NEW ZEALAND.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

Replying to New Year's greetings from the Government, the Portuguese Republic has cabled to New Zealand:—"Portugal, the oldest ally of Great Britain, and now once more fighting by her side for the cause of justice, feels proud of this confraternity in arms. We are firmly convinced of the final victory of the allied nations, and are decided to co-operate with them as much as possible."

THE QUEEN VICTORIA MARKETS.

REMODELLING SCHEME.

Last night the City Council reached the final stage of consideration in regard to the Lord Mayor's scheme for the remodelling of the Queen Victoria Markets, at a cost of £21,728.

The Lord Mayor, in reply to questions, said that the market buildings had been offered without any result to the Commonwealth and State Governments as offices before the alterations were decided upon. He would undertake to find the money for the remodelling and he was in a position to say that the work would be completed within 15 months. The new shops would be let in an open competition.

Several aldermen supported the scheme and announced themselves in favour of carrying out the alterations without further delay.

Alderman Brunton advised the council to leave well enough alone until the end of the war.

Alderman Hagon said that if he stood alone he would oppose the expenditure of so large a sum on the markets. The cost of materials at war time would be enormous. It was his intention to move as an amendment that the adoption of the Lord Mayor's minute be postponed for six months.

Alderman Kelly said that while not hostile to the Lord Mayor's scheme, he would support Alderman Hagon's amendment for financial reasons.

The voting on the amendment was:—For, Aldermen Hagon, Kelly, and Brunton; against, Aldermen Addison Barlow, Burke, English, Farrell, Fitzgerald, Gilpin, Mallett, M'Elhone, M'Gree, O'Connor, Milner Stephen, Taylor, Thompson, and Walker.

Alderman Walker's motion, approving of the scheme, was then carried by 15 to 3.

GORDON SEAT.

MR. LOXTON'S NOMINATION PROPOSED.

Mr. E. J. Loxton, K.C., was asked yesterday by a number of Liberals of the Gordon Electorate, which is at present represented by Mr. C. G. Wade, to allow himself to be nominated for selection, in the event of Mr. Wade's retirement. Mr. Loxton agreed to the proposal.

Mr. Loxton took a prominent part in the 6 o'clock closing campaign, and was a keen advocate of conscription. He has assisted in the present recruiting campaign, and has addressed meetings throughout the State.

THE ANTARCTIC.

SPEECH BY SIR ERNEST SHACKLETON.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

Speaking at a public reception to-day, Sir Ernest Shackleton said that Captain Davis had been responsible for the expedition, and had carried through the work well. On arrival at M'Murdo Sound he had quickly provided all facilities, so that he (Sir Ernest Shackleton) and the others could go ashore to search for their comrades. Captain Davis had not been content until every possible search had been made, but there was no hope of success. The friendship he had formed with Captain Davis years ago had been made stronger and more firmly cemented by the way in which they had worked together.

The period of 190 days, he added, was the longest time on record for any sledge party to be out in either the Arctic or Antarctic. The late Captain Macintosh had left a wife and two children, and not much money, and he hoped by various means to be able to help them.

THE "SYDNEY MAIL."

In this week's "Mail" there are numerous interesting photographs bearing on the American crisis. The cover has a fine portrait of President Wilson, and in addition to other illustrations there are photographs of the President and his Cabinet, various naval views, and portraits of Colonel Roosevelt, Senator Stone, Count von Bernstorff, Mr. Gerard (U.S. ambassador to Germany), and the American ambassadors to Austria and Turkey, as well as Admiral Fletcher, General Funston, and Mr. Newton D. Baker (U.S. Secretary of War). There are, as usual, interesting pictures from the western front—some of them show Australians and Canadians—and portraits of Australian heroes, who have fallen. A page dealing with the need for recruits tells in plain terms what is done for our soldiers and their dependents from the moment of enlistment. In connection with the German policy of "frightfulness" there are pictures of several vessels that have been torpedoed, and which have visited Australia. There are some admirable "outdoor Australia" pictures from Riverina, and views on the Darling and Murray rivers. Among other subjects illustrated are a railway recruiting meeting at Eveleigh, and the jubilee of the Jamberoo Church of England.

WAR MINISTRY.

TO-DAY'S LIBERAL MEETING.

SENATE ELECTIONS.

NO PREFERENCE TO UNIONISTS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

To-morrow will probably see the launching of a new National party in the Federal Parliament with "win the war" as the first plank of its platform, and on Wednesday the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) will doubtless be in a position to announce the names of his new Ministry.

All the main preliminaries of the amalgamation between the Liberals and the Ministerialists have been arranged, and it only remains for three representatives from each party to decide upon the final draft of the memorandum which is to be laid before the members of their parties in the afternoon. To-morrow morning there will be a brief meeting, attended by Mr. Hughes, Mr. Cook, Senator Pearce, Mr. Glynn, Mr. Jensen, and Sir John Forrest, and doubtless at its conclusion the leaders of the respective parties will take away with them signed agreements containing the terms on which they will recommend a coalition.

The meeting of the Liberals takes place to-morrow afternoon. Mr. Cook, the leader, arrived in Melbourne to-day, and was present at Parliament House for a few hours. The other interstate members are expected to-morrow. In political circles there seems to be little doubt about the acceptance of the recommendation to form a National War Ministry, but probably there will be some members who think that better terms could have been obtained. This idea is being fostered by Labour members, who are persistently drumming it into the ears of wavering Liberals that they could have got as much as they cared to ask for from Mr. Hughes. However, from what can be learned in general conversation with Liberals, the majority of them consider that they have done very well out of the business.

Now that a new ministry is practically assured there is a strong feeling growing that there is little need for a Senate election in the near future. Members claim that it would be a useless waste of money to hold a Senate election in April and another election for the House of Representatives a few months later, and the suggestion is being freely canvassed that even if a prolongation of both Houses is not feasible, there should be a postponement of the Senate election until the House of Representatives is ready to go to the country. It is not known how the Labour Party would take such a suggestion, but the general impression is that no party would care to force the spending of a large sum of money on two separate elections, when the same purpose could be effected a few months later practically for nothing.

It is understood that one of the planks in the agreement arrived at between the two leaders is that there shall be no preference to unionists in Government employ. The system of preference was brought in by Mr. Fisher, and when Mr. Cook displaced him, he immediately cancelled the order, which was again brought into existence when Mr. Fisher once more gained possession of the Treasury benches.

SUPPORT FOR MR. HUGHES.

PERTH, Monday.

Messrs. Underwood and Heitmann, Labour members, who were delegates from the National Council of Western Australia to the National Federal Conference in Melbourne, made their report at a meeting on Friday night.

Mr. Heitmann said that the fears among Labour followers and Liberals of losing their identity if they joined the federation were groundless. The great majority of Labour followers in Western Australia would support Mr. Hughes. Mr. Underwood spoke in a similar strain.

The Premier, Mr. Wilson, said that State politics would be left alone. The Commonwealth had control of war affairs. Western Australia should be solidly behind the National Government.

The Colonial Secretary, Mr. Colebatch, said that if Labour opponents of Mr. Hughes put up candidates in opposition to the three retiring Western Australian Senators who had stuck to him, every Liberal would know who to vote for.

A Perth branch of the National Federation was formed, and an inaugural meeting was arranged.

The Midland Junction branch of the Amalgamated Engineers' Union has decided to withdraw from the Labour Federation and support the Hughes party.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Prime Minister has received the following cablegram from the Darwin Electorate of Tasmania, at present represented by Mr. King O'Malley. The cable message, which is signed by Mr. O. G. Norton, of Burnie, reads as follows:—"A large number of your supporters in Darwin are confident an overwhelming majority of electors would welcome and be proud of your nomination as a candidate for this division. Should you entertain this suggestion we would esteem it a pleasure to demonstrate in definite form that the public desire this course. We assure you the referendum vote will be again recorded."

A telegram has also been received from Mr. D. W. Clarson, late secretary of the Labour Federation, Bellevue (W.A.), which reads:—"West looks for your leadership."

AUSTRALIANS HONOURED.

AWARDED MILITARY MEDAL.

Word had been received that Corporal Gordon Gabriel, of the 12th Company, Field Engineers, has been awarded the Military Medal for gallantry at Pozieres. He also received a message from Major-General Sir H. V. Cox, congratulating him upon his devotion to duty. Corporal Gabriel left Australia with the 1st Light Horse on October 19, 1914, and served in the Gallipoli campaign until the evacuation. He was transferred to the 4th Division, Australian Engineers, in April, 1916, and has served in France ever since. He is the only son of Inspector F. W. Gabriel, of the Department of External Affairs, Melbourne, and late of Dalkeith, Livingstone-road, Petersham. Prior to the war he was a well-known interstate lacrosse player. He was educated at Brisbane Grammar School, and qualified as a mining engineer and surveyor. At present he is in hospital at Havre suffering from bronchitis.

Word has been received by private cable that Private Lewis Maunsell, son of Sergeant R. D. Maunsell, of Armidale (now on active service), has been awarded the Military Medal. He is 18 years of age, and before enlisting was on the staff of the City Bank.

ANXIOUS TIMES AHEAD.

REMARKS BY CHIEF RAILWAY COMMISSIONER.

In the course of his remarks to a deputation from the Amalgamated Society of Engineers and the Federated Blacksmiths' Union, which waited upon him yesterday with reference to the classification of certain machine hammer work in the Railway Department's shops, the Chief Commissioner, Mr. Fraser, said they were faced with the problem of endeavouring to maintain the present staff throughout the various branches of the Works Department at its normal strength, under very great difficulties. In order to accomplish this they had to pay greatly increased prices for material, in consequence of the war, and this, together with the constantly increasing rates of pay, brought those responsible for the administration of the railway system face to face with a situation which was causing them a good deal of concern. The Commissioners would strain every point to keep the men employed, but at the same time they had to be seized with their duty to the public. If the position they were now in became more acute, concluded Mr. Fraser, then they would have seriously to consider the alternative of either reducing the service now available, which would mean reducing the staffs, or raise the price of the service rendered to the public.

FERRY SERVICES.

STATE PROPOSALS.

BEFORE PUBLIC WORKS COMMITTEE.

Proposals for the establishment of State ferry services have been placed before the State Public Works Department.

The scheme provides for the establishment of passenger ferry services between Sydney (Dawes Point) and Milson's Point, and Sydney (Dawes Point) and M'Mahon's Point; and vehicular services between Sydney (Dawes Point) and Blue's Point, and Woolloomooloo Bay and Cremorne. A similar proposal was referred by Parliament to the Public Works Committee in November, 1911, and an inquiry was opened by that body in February, 1912, but was not completed during the term of the then current Parliament. In connection with that inquiry a statement, prepared by the Under-Secretary for Public Works, was placed before the Committee, in which the estimated cost of the scheme was given at £[illegible] (passenger traffic £106,820, and vehicular traffic £104,290). This statement has been revised, and the estimated cost is now considerably higher, owing to the war and other reasons.

The proposal is to establish a line of passenger ferry boats from Dawes Point to Milson's and M'Mahon's points respectively, and to extend the tramway system on the Sydney side to connect the George-street and the Railway trams with proposed new ferry wharfs at Dawes Point.

At Dawes Point it is proposed to construct two berths on the east side of the present horse-ferry dock, the latter not being interfered with. The cost of these berths and a weather-shed is estimated at £12,000. These berths provide for the embarkation and disembarkation of passengers from boats of the end-loading type.

At M'Mahon's Point a dock is to be provided to the east of the dolphins recently erected. End-on loading is also proposed here. A strip of land to connect the dock with the tramway area, leased from the Sydney Ferries, Ltd., will have to be acquired from the company. Passengers will thus be landed at the existing balloon loop forming the terminus of the tram. The cost of this accommodation is estimated at £5400.

At Milson's Point it is proposed to form a dock abreast of the Milson's Point Railway Station platform, the passengers to be taken on and off the boats similarly to Dawes Point and M'Mahon's Point. The cost of this accommodation is estimated at £6000.

It is proposed to use steamers capable of carrying up to 1200 passengers, taking two steamers to each destination from Dawes Point, and allowing one steamer for emergency in case of disablement of one of the four: or five steamers altogether would be required at, say, £22,000 each. Total cost, £110,000.

AVIATION SCHOOL.

THE SUCCESSFUL APPLICANTS.

The committee of control of the New South Wales School of Aviation held four prolonged sittings during last week, for the purpose of personally interviewing the very large number of suitable young men who had applied for admission. Having only two machines available for tuition work, the number of students of each school has to be limited to 12, as the course takes 6 to 8 weeks. [illegible] applicants there were enough suitable young men to fill at least six schools, and the selection of the best dozen was, therefore, a task of great difficulty. The chairman of the committee, Mr. Arthur Griffith, [illegible] applicants who were not [illegible] to consider themselves rejected [illegible] be given further opportunities [illegible] lections.

The chairman has received from the Minister for Defence a [illegible] 25 years of age, and not [illegible] in weight, should get preference [illegible] no one over 30 years of age [illegible] should be selected.

THE WEST

FRENCH MAKE HEADWAY

AMERICAN CRISIS

NO NEW DEVELOPMENTS

ITALIAN FRONT

FIGHTING NEAR GORIZIA

The British forces are making satisfactory headway on the Western front.

A strong system of trenches at Serre Hill, on a front of three-quarters of a mile, has been taken, and a number of prisoners captured.

The French penetrated the enemy lines in the Forest of Apremont, and took prisoners.

The newspapers consider that the submarinings are likely soon to decrease, as the Admiralty's tactics have improved.

No further big ships are reported to have been torpedoed, though a few trawlers have been sunk.

No developments of note are reported in connection with the relations between America and Germany.

There has been severe fighting between the Austrians and Italians in the neighbourhood of Gorizia.

WESTERN FRONT.

BRITISH SUCCESS.

STRONG TRENCH SYSTEM CAPTURED.

LONDON, Feb. 12.

Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, in his report on Sunday night, stated: We captured a strong system of trenches on the southern foot of Serre Hill on a front of three-quarters of a mile, and took two hundred and fifteen prisoners, which exceeds the total of our casualties. We drove back the enemy's attempt south of Sailly Saillisel and entered trenches in the neighbourhood of Pys, La Bassee, Neuve Chapelle, and Fauquissant, inflicting casualties and taking prisoners.

A French communique issued on Sunday afternoon stated:—We penetrated the enemy lines in the forest of Apremont, and took some prisoners. German attempted coups-de-main in the Argonne and Lorraine failed.

A French communique issued at midnight on Sunday stated:—There has been moderate but general artillery fire. Successful air operations have been completed, in which factories and blast furnaces in Lorraine villages were bombed, also an aerodrome in Colmar and Zeebrugge.

CROSSING THE YSER.

Advices from Rotterdam state that the German Emperor has issued an order to Germans to cross the Yser, saying, "My armies have passed all the rivers they have hitherto met with; now I ask them to cross the Yser."

GERMAN REPORT.

(Admiralty—per Wireless Press.)

A German official message states:—The British attacked north-east of Beaumont, east of Grandcourt, and north of Courcelette. One company penetrated our line in the direction of Beaucourt, but the enemy were repulsed elsewhere. We repulsed the French in a hand-to-hand fight in Sailly Wood and on both sides of the Moselle.

BRITISH ARTILLERY.

SUPERIORITY ADMITTED.

LONDON, Feb. 11.

A German officer's report found in Grandcourt, dated the night preceding the evacuation, admits the superiority of the British artillery. It states:—"From 11 o'clock in the morning until 5 in the evening we were under a violent and ceaseless fire. Nothing could withstand it. The trenches and shelters are so damaged that they are no longer of any use. Between 10 and 11 at night the bombardment was resumed with unprecedented violence. Enemy aeroplanes flew over our position all day at a low altitude to show the direction of the fire. Our artillery replied feebly. Our aviators did not appear until late in the evening, but did not interfere with the British aviators' work. If the bombardment continues to-morrow we shall not have the slightest shelter."

GERMAN VESSELS.

IN BRAZILIAN PORTS.

RIO DE JANIERO, Feb. 11.

The Government is investigating reports of plots alleged to have been made by crews to destroy the German vessels now in Brazilian ports. All the harbours are closed at sunset.

GORIZIA.

AUSTRIANS AND ITALIANS.

SEVERE FIGHTING.

LONDON, Feb. 12.

An Italian semi-official message states: The Austrians have recently repeatedly attacked, endeavouring to eject the Italians from the advanced positions east of Gorizia which were favourable for the Italian offensive. Their attack on the night of the 10th inst. and the following day was made by a great number of effectives and the whole of their artillery. Thinking the defenders had been annihilated by the bombardment the infantry assaulted, and desperate fighting ensued. The Italians carried out counter-attacks, and reoccupied the captured positions. The Italian forts at the end of the action were intact. The position is unchanged except that a few advanced trench elements have been occupied by the Austrians. Hundreds of the latter's dead have been left on the field.

The "Daily Chronicle" correspondent, telegraphing from the Italian headquarters at Gorizia, says that the Austrians daily bombard the roads and piazza of Gorizia, from which they are distant only a short walk. There is a bewildering complication of galleries, tunnels, and terraces upon the rampart of the hills eastward, which make up the front line of the trench systems both sides have elaborately developed recently during the quiet months. The trenches are sometimes within half a dozen yards of each other, the parapets being only separated by an impassable cordon of wire entanglements. Austrian prisoners state that they believe the Italians are preparing for a formidable onslaught.

An Austrian official message says: Enemy counter-attacks at Gorizia broke down. We captured a further contingent of prisoners, numbering 370. Italian aviators bombed Trieste.

An early Italian official message states: On Friday night the enemy strongly attacked east of Gorizia, but nearly everywhere they were repulsed.

SHIPPING LOSSES.

SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN.

BRITISH SEAMEN UNDISMAYED.

LONDON, Feb. 12.

Better news is to hand regarding the losses from submarines. No further big ships are reported to have been lost, though a few trawlers have been sunk.

The Japanese Prince was torpedoed without warning. The torpedo was clearly seen striking the vessel amidships, a terrific explosion following. Seventy-five of the crew, including 30 American cattlemen, immediately took to the boats and were picked up an hour later. A number were injured by the explosion.

The American Consul at Queenstown reports that there was only one American (the ship's surgeon) aboard the British steamer Mantola (8828 tons), which, as previously reported, was torpedoed without warning on Thursday south-west of Fastnet. The crew numbered 165, and passengers 109. All were saved except a few Lascars.

The newspapers consider that the first week of the submarine frightfulness must be disappointing to Germany, in view of Germany's proclaimed object of starving Britain. Small vessels constitute a large proportion of the victims. It will be impossible to stop Britain's oversea trade, unless the submarine records improve. The torpedoings are likely soon to decrease, as the Admiralty's anti-submarine tactics have improved and extended. The merchant service is undismayed. From vessels which have been torpedoed sailors are signing on for new voyages.

MODIFICATION LIKELY.

It is reported from Amsterdam that the German Emperor has summoned Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg (Chancellor), Herr Zimmerman (Foreign Minister), and the Military and Admiralty Chiefs to a conference at headquarters, to consider negotiations with neutrals for a modification of the submarine policy.

THE RUSSIANS.

ENEMY RUSE FAILS.

(Admiralty—per Wireless Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 11.

A Russian official message states:—Germans dressed in white overalls penetrated our trenches north of Stanislavov, but were driven out.

We sank three schooners laden with corn off the Anatolian coast.

A German official message states:—We repulsed and are pursuing the Russians north of Narocz Lake and south-east of Zloczow.

WHAT GERMANY THOUGHT.

ANOTHER DIPLOMATIC ERROR

LONDON, Feb. 11.

Zurich message discloses the fact that Germany did not expect America would break off relations, and made another diplomatic mistake similar to believing that England would not break off relations, but remain neutral.

The Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, addressing the Reichstag on January 31, in a speech which was previously censored, said:—"The German Government has carefully weighed all the possibilities and is convinced that President Wilson will not break off diplomatic relations immediately, nor adopt a vigorously hostile policy. Count von Bernstorff has assured us that the United States will not abandon neutrality in the event of unrestricted submarinings, but will only send one or more Notes resulting in prolonged negotiations, which will probably lead to nothing serious."

Regarding other neutrals Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg said:—"We may rest assured that although they may protest, they can and will do nothing. The Government has decided, after receiving the advice of military and naval experts, that we must risk even war with America. Unrestricted submarine activity is our only hope for a decisive victory against England."

FOOD TICKETS IN ITALY.

ROME, Feb. 11.

The Municipalties of Bergamo and Sestri Pomente have adopted a system of food tickets. It is expected other towns will follow.

AMERICAN CRISIS.

FEELING IN BERLIN.

LITTLE HOPE OF AVOIDING WAR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.

An American correspondent who has arrived at Copenhagen says that little hope is felt in Berlin that war with the United States can be avoided.

Germany will not, he says, abandon her ruthless campaign, but instructions have been given to submarine commanders to avoid trouble with American ships, and to warn neutrals when such action is consistent with the object of the campaign. The detention of Mr. Gerard was the result of alarmist despatches published in Germany describing the United States treatment of Germans in America.

There is a growing impression in Washington that Germany's informal suggestion to the United States was intended rather to embarrass the Administration than as a sincere attempt to adjust difficulties.

A wireless message picked up showed that American pacifists, in conjunction with a German correspondent, were sending messages misrepresenting American opinion, and urging Germany to provide an opening for the re-establishment of friendly relations.

Some newspapers are showing irritation on account of the United States delaying action while the ruthless submarining continues.

Prior to breaking off relations, Germany proposed that Mr. Gerard, in case of war, should enter into a re-ratification of the Treaty of 1799, specifying that ships should not be confiscated and contracts respected; also that the right to remain in the two countries during the war should be extended to merchants, doctors, and teachers; and that the internment of civilians be provided against.

Mr. Gerard answered that he was no longer the American Ambassador, and had no authority to sign such re-ratification. The German Government then dropped negotiations.

MR. GERARD'S RETURN.

LONDON, Feb. 12.

The "Daily Telegraph's" Copenhagen correspondent says that telegrams from Berlin show that Mr. Gerard and his staff, the American Consuls, and some journalists, left Berlin on Saturday night. They will sail on the voyage to America from Vigo or Barcelona.

BERNE, Feb. 12.

Mr. Gerard and over 100 members of the American colony in Germany have arrived in Switzerland.

POSITION OF NEUTRALS.

GREEK SYMPATHY.

LONDON, Feb. 12.

The Greek Government's reply to the American Note declares that Greece is not in a position to contemplate concerted action for the protection of the world's shipping, but expresses her sympathy with every effort to maintain the freedom of navigation.

PROTEST OF BOLIVIA.

Bolivia has sent a protest to Berlin against the submarine policy, and has assured the United States that she adheres to President Wilson's programme.

CHINA'S ATTITUDE.

SUPPORTING THE PROTEST.

TOKIO, Feb. 12.

It is announced that Japan will not endeavour to prevent China from supporting the United States protest.

Mr. Fredmore, the Peking correspondent of the American papers, says that China has been anxious to enter the war ever since the outbreak, but has been prevented owing to the strong pressure of Japan.

A Rome message states that the Chinese Legation declares that if German submarines kill a single Chinese, China will sever relations.

GREECE.

GERMAN SCHEMES FAIL.

THE MESSAGE TO CONSTANTINE

LONDON, Feb. 11.

Mr. Ward Price, writing from Salonica, says the provisional Government has received information that the German Emperor sent a significant message to King Constantine telling him that Germany cannot co-operate with or come to King Constantine's aid against the Allies in Macedonia.

The message concludes:—"All I ask of you now is that you shall keep the throne."

Mr. Ward Price continues: This message sounds like a dirge over Germany's schemes, which were undoubtedly active a few weeks ago when Germany was making an attempt to secure the co-operation of the Greeks to clear the Balkans of the Allies. It also explains the facility with which King Constantine is sending troops to Peloponnesus, and it is evident Germany contemplates intriguing with Greece after the war. There is a belief that Germany has intended for a long time to obtain a coastline position at the very gates of Egypt, which may be of immense strategic value. It is the business of the Venizelists to counter such plans.

WEALTH AND WAR LOAN.

LONDON, Feb. 12.

Mr. Bonar Law has sent special circulars to many who are paying the supertax, including city companies and limited companies, asking for his own information as Chancellor of the Exchequer, how much they were going to subscribe to the war loan. The circular has met with considerable criticism. Some believe the answers may influence the coming Budget. If wealthy men largely subscribe to the war loan the necessity for increased taxation will be lessened.

V69 PATCHED UP.

LONDON, Feb. 12.

Advices from Amsterdam state that the German destroyer V69, which was badly battered in the recent action in the North Sea and ran into Ymuiden (Holland) for shelter, has been patched up, and has left on her return homeward.

RIGA FRONT.

ENEMY'S COSTLY FAILURE.

LULL IN OPERATIONS.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 12.

The calm on the Riga front marks the end of the recent operations.

The Russians, in their original advance, nearly captured Mitau. If they had done so they would have driven back the German left wing and directly threatened East Prussia. Though this failed the Russians still hold Lake Babit and Tirul Swamp, which are in the line threatening Mitau. The Germans were so impressed with the danger that they launched a series of terrible attacks, the losses recalling the early weeks of the Battle of Verdun. Their available reserves are now entirely exhausted, and unless they retake the Lake Babit and Tirul Swamp positions immediately the thaw will come and the Germans will be unable to resume the offensive, owing to the Russians occupying higher ground.

ROUMANIA.

GENERAL SOCECU'S BETRAYAL

PENAL SERVITUDE.

PARIS, Feb. 12.

The "Libre Parole" says that a Roumanian officer, General Socecu, has been condemned by court-martial at Jassy to five years' penal servitude and degradation for betraying the Roumanian army.

The circumstances are, that his command on December 1 was executing a plan by General Berthelot, head of the French mission. The southern Roumanian army made a vigorous offensive on the River Arges against German-Bulgarian troops, who had crossed the Danube and were advancing on Bucharest. The enemy were thrown back in disorder for a dozen miles. General Socecu's army turned the enemy's left, cutting them off completely from General von Falkenhayn's army. General Berthelot sent a wireless message to Paris announcing success, and adding that he intended to drive General von Mackensen's forces back to the Danube; but General Socecu, instead of continuing the pursuit, remained inactive. When ordered to advance General Socecu commanded his army to retreat, and thus Mackensen was saved.

MESOPOTAMIA.

ENEMY PUSHED BACK.

LONDON, Feb. 11.

An official message from Mesopotamia states:—We assaulted and took possession of the liquorice factory, as well as 500 yards of trenches. Major-General Townshend held this factory throughout the siege of Kut-el-Amara. As a result of these operations we occupied a new line along a 6000 yards front, and pushed back the enemy to a depth of 800 to 1200 yards.

MACEDONIA.

ANGLO-FRENCH OFFENSIVE.

(Admiralty—per Wireless Press.)

A German official message states:—A French thrust north-west of Monastir, and a British attack south-west of Doiran Lake, failed.

ENEMY FORCES.

ALONG ALL FRONTS.

LONDON, Feb. 12.

The "Morning Post's" Petrograd correspondent says it is officially estimated that the enemy forces along 1000 miles of the Russian front consist on an average of a division to every six miles, on the French front a division to every four miles, and on the Salonika front a division to each 14 miles.

PEACE PROPAGANDA.

GERMANS' LATEST METHOD.

LONDON, Feb. 12.

The latest German method of peace propaganda is to send up fire balloons over the Russian lines, which when blazing release leaflets printed in Russian, Polish, and Tartar.

THE LATEST ATROCITY.

LONDON, Feb. 11.

The latest German atrocity in Belgium is reported. The military authorities have removed 300 lunatics from Bruges asylum without allowing their guardians to prepare for their reception elsewhere.

WAR-TIME ECONOMY.

LONDON, Feb. 9.

There are strong complaints that West End restaurants, especially the clubs, are not showing efforts to reduce food consumption. The menus are virtually unchanged.

The newspapers are renewing the discussion as to the necessity for one or even two meatless days weekly. The middle and lower classes are showing a better disposition to observe Lord Devonport's suggestions.

WAR LOAN DAY.

LONDON, Feb. 11.

Many pulpit references were made to-day to the war loan, people being urged to subscribe.

REINFORCEMENTS.

DEPARTMENT'S TASK.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) commented to-day on a suggestion made by Mr. Hampson, M.P., that the casualties sustained by the Australian troops should be published each month side by side with the recruiting figures for the same period. Mr. Hampson had overlooked one or two important considerations, said the Minister. Fully six months elapsed between the time a recruit enlisted and when he went into the trenches, so that to know the number of troops required to make good the losses would necessitate a knowledge of what was going to happen in the firing-line six months ahead. In September last, for instance, the Australian casualties totalled 19,000, so that all the department could do was to take the average over a number of months and work to that.

WAR NOTES.

FIGHTING ON MANY FRONTS.

Military operations are reported from several different fronts this morning, which, although not showing any decisions of vital importance, are in most instances favourable to the Allies. The Austrian attack eastward of Gorizia and the British success in Mesopotamia are referred to in previous notes. The Russians have sustained a minor attack in Galicia, but, according to the Petrograd message, their recent gains in the extreme north, near Riga, may yet have an important bearing on future operations in spite of the enemy's expensive counter-attacks. The British success on the southern side of Serre Hill, which resulted in the capture of a system of trenches, is the outstanding feature of the later operations in the Somme area. This movement should tend to bring forward the British line near Serre, and make it conform with the recent advance at Grandcourt and Baillescourt, on the Ancre, a few miles to the south-east. Not the least interesting portion of Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig's message, which announces this additional gain on the Somme, is his reference to the cost of the achievement. He states that the number of prisoners taken in the movement exceeded the number of casualties suffered by the attacking force. As the enemy is sure to have sustained casualties of his own, it is clear that his total losses were very much heavier than those of the British. The fact that the British suffered less than 215 casualties during an attack delivered along a front of three-quarters of a mile provides a satisfactory outlook for the future, and suggests that the new methods of attack which proved so effective at Verdun may be equally successful in future operations in the Somme region. In the meantime it is safe to say that Sir Douglas Haig's desire to see the enemy suffer greater loss in men, material, and moral continues to be realised in this area.

EASTWARD OF GORIZIA.

According to the semi-official Italian message published this morning, the Austrian attack eastward of Gorizia was conducted on a comparatively large scale, and met with a certain amount of success in its initial stages. The advantages gained at first, however, were not maintained for very long, and the Italian counter-attacks, which immediately followed, practically equalised matters. It would appear to be reasonably certain that the Allied plans for the coming spring will allow for a continuation of the Italian offensive on the Carso plateau, and a further advance in the direction of the Austrian port of Trieste. The capture of Gorizia by the Italians in August last removed one of the principal obstacles to such an advance, and one which had previously held the Italians up for so long. Austria is fully cognisant of the nature of the task which she will have to face in her new positions on the Carso and eastward of Gorizia in the near future, and it was no doubt with a view to forestalling the inevitable Italian offensive in this region, and, if possible, upsetting the Italian plan, that she launched her latest attack in the direction of the town which was previously considered to be the key to Trieste. It is practically certain that the heights eastward of Gorizia and the rocky hills of the Carso will be the scenes of some severe struggles before many months pass. The Austrians will have taken advantage of the winter months to strengthen their lines and prepare additional defences on the Carso, where, owing to the rocky nature of the country, new defensive lines can only be provided at the expense of much time, trouble, and labour. They will thus endeavour to make up for the weakness in their front caused by the loss of Gorizia, and, in the meantime, if they are able to retake any of the lost ground in the direction of that town, they will no doubt consider it worth while making sacrifices towards that end. It is a noteworthy fact, however, that the Italians, although their progress has at times been slow, have rarely given way before enemy attacks on this front. Although the Austrians have gained a foothold in one or two places during the attack now reported, the Italians appear to have no reason to be otherwise than satisfied with the nature of their defence.

THE LIQUORICE FACTORY AGAIN.

The official message from Mesopotamia announcing the capture by the British of the liquorice factory shows how insecure the Turkish hold on the town of Kut-el-Amara has now become. Kut lies on the northern bank of the Tigris, where the river flows in an easterly direction. It is enclosed in a loop formed by the river taking a slight bend southward, and back northward, before resuming its easterly course. At the south-western corner of this bend the Tigris is joined by the watercourse of the Shatt-el-Hai, which comes up from the south, and connects the Euphrates and the Tigris. Close to the mouth of this watercourse, and slightly westward of it, stands the liquorice factory, surrounded by a couple of hovels, which are the only buildings in Kut not contained within the loop of the Tigris referred to. General Townshend's main defensive position, after he had fallen back on Kut, consisted of an entrenched line across the neck of land on the northern side of the Tigris loop, together with a closed work known as the North Fort, but, as the cablegram published this morning states, he also held the liquorice factory on the southern bank. After the fierce Turkish attacks on the northern defences had been broken by the defenders of Kut, the enemy bombarded this liquorice factory on December 29, 1915, but no infantry attack followed, and the Turks were satisfied to proceed with the task of starving out the defenders. General Townsend continued to hold the liquorice factory throughout the siege which followed. During those trying days the garrison found the patch of ground near the factory one of the safest spots within their lines, and what little sport they enjoyed was usually indulged in at this point. By the capture of the liquorice factory the British must now have secured possession of the whole of the southern bank of the Tigris immediately below and to the eastward of Kut. As the river, which is the only obstacle between the British and this squalid little town, is only about 80 yards wide at this point, the position of the Turkish forces inside the Tigris loop must now be far from pleasant.

SITUATION IN GREECE.

Less than a month has passed since Mr. Ward Price despatched his sensational cablegram from Salonica regarding the unexpected appearance in Thessaly of General von Falkenhayn. This led the British official correspondent into committing himself to a statement that "the moment for Greek and German combined action had arrived." Over three weeks have elapsed without any further evidences being forthcoming of this combined action. The message referred to has certainly not enhanced Mr. Ward Price's reputation for accuracy and reliability, and does not tend to make us over credulous regarding his knowledge of the contents of the private correspondence passing between King Constantine and his German brother-in-law. In any case, his message which is published this morning directly contradicts the one sent on January 17 last. The Greek situation was undoubtedly most critical for some time prior to the Allied conference held in Rome earlier in January last. The possibilities of the Central Powers making a fresh effort in Macedonia, and of the Greek army simultaneously taking General Sarrail in the rear, were by no means remote. The Allies had expressed their intention of applying a firm hand to Greece, but there were not wanting signs that they lacked the desired unanimity as to the course which should be followed. After the Rome conference, however, it was clear that, if Greece still intended actively to co-operate with the Central Powers, she would not be able to lose much time, as Italy had expressed concurrence with the whole of the view of the Allies concerning her. When the Greek acceptance of the Allies Note followed, it was plain that little more remained for the Allies to do except take precautions to see that the promise was carried out. There does not appear to be any reason to believe that this has not been done, or that most of the Greek troops have not now been transferred to Peloponnesus, in the south of Greece, where they will not constitute such a menace as they previously did to the rear of the Allied armies in Macedonia.

HONOURS.

CONFERRED BY KING

AUSTRALIAN DISTINCTIONS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Governor-General announced this evening that his Majesty the King had been pleased to confer the following New Year honours:—

K.C.M.G.

HIS HONOR GEORGE JOHN MURRAY, Chief Justice of South Australia.

KNIGHTS BACHELOR.

Mr. THOMAS ALLWRIGHT DIBBS, formerly general manager of the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney, Limited.

Mr. JOHN GRICE, of Melbourne.

Mr. ROBERT RANDOLPH GARRAN, C.M.G., Solicitor-General of the Commonwealth.

C.M.G.

Mr. JAMES MITCHELL, M.L.A., Minister for Railways, Water Supply, and Industries, Western Australia.

Mr. LEONARD RODWAY, Government Botanist, Tasmania.

VETERAN BANKER.

SIR THOMAS DIBBS.

Mr. Thomas Allwright Dibbs, the veteran banker, upon whom the honour of knighthood has been conferred, was for 68 years in the service of the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney (48 of which were spent as the general manager), and retired from active business life on July 20, 1915. But Sir Thomas Dibbs is known as a philanthropist as well as a great banker, though it has been a philanthropy without publicity for the most part. He has been more than a generous supporter of our hospitals and other charitable institutions. No appeal for a worthy cause was ever made to him in vain. Mention should also be made of his munificent donation of £5000, on the completion of 60 years' service in the Bank, in 1907, as the basis of a relief fund to meet cases of sickness, distress, or misfortune which might arise amongst the staff of that institution. Moreover, since the outbreak of the war he has been a large subscriber to the various war funds; and his generosity, as also that of Lady Dibbs, was strikingly manifested, in the gift to the State of his beautiful home, Graythwaite, North Sydney, to be used as a permanent home for disabled soldiers. Sir Thomas Dibbs is 84 years old, and is a brother of the late Sir George Dibbs, for many years a prominent figure in the financial and political affairs of New South Wales, and for some time Premier. The conferring of the honour of knighthood upon two brothers is sufficiently rare to be worthy of remark.

Sir Thomas Dibbs, prior to his retirement, enjoyed the distinction of being the oldest bank manager in Australasia, and he had been longer in the service of any bank than any other man in the Commonwealth. It was in recognition of his great services that, when he retired in July, 1915, the board decided to make him an honorary director, and, at the same time, to grant him a retiring allowance of £2000 per annum; and it was in recognition of his services to the State that the Premier, Mr. Holman, and several other members of the Government, waited upon him and presented him with a handsome address. From that address we may quote these words:—"During a career which is unique in the history of Australian banking and finance you have not only guided the destinies of one of our largest and most successful financial instutions, and by an enlightened policy contributed much to the rapid growth of our industries and to the development of our resources, but you have been in a special manner the banker and financial adviser of the Government of the State."

Sir Thomas Dibbs is a native of Sydney—he was born in a cottage on the site now occupied by the Equitable-building in George-street, on October 31, 1832—and he has not only seen this city grow from small things to great things, but he has in a very real sense contributed to that growth. After the death of his father, Captain John Dibbs, of St. Andrews, Scotland, the family went to live in the neighbourhood of Flagstaff Hill, and one eventful morning in 1847 Thomas Dibbs went forth, as a small boy, to make his start in life. He has said that his mother's parting injunction was to "be sure and speak up." His head barely reached above the counter of the bank, and he heard the manager say, "I am afraid he is too small." It was a crucial moment, and the lad felt the time had come for him to "speak up." Addressing the manager, he asked if he thought it impossible for anything good to come out of a small parcel. That settled it, and he was engaged.

It was the late Sir Edward Knox, father of Mr. E. W. Knox, general manager of the Colonial Sugar Refining Company, who gave young Dibbs his start in the bank. Recalling this fact, Mr. Knox said on the occasion of the official farewell to Mr. Dibbs by the board of directors of the bank: "There is no need for me to refer to the progress of the bank under Mr. Dibbs's care, but I would like to say a few words about my father's friendship with him. This lasted for 54 years, during which time my father was almost continuously connected with the bank—first as manager, afterwards as director and chairman—and he was always glad to remember that he had been the means of bringing our friend into the business he was later on to manage with such success." It was on the same occasion that Mr. Henry Gorman remarked that Mr. Dibbs's services to the country could not be estimated, and that, apart from his greatness as a banker, "his philanthropic efforts have been expended everywhere."

In recounting his experiences, Sir Thomas Dibbs once said:—"My first recollections of George-street take me back to the old military barracks, with their high stone wall, occupying the western side of the street. I was educated at the old Australian College in Jamieson-street, and to give you an idea of the changes that have taken place in Sydney, I may state that, as a boy, I have played cricket on ground now covered by palatial buildings. I can remember the eastern side, almost a paddock, in which that good old colonist, the late Mr. Thomas S. Mort, conducted auction sales. The changes in the values of property in the streets of Sydney have been extreme. The principal street, George-street, runs parallel to the old Tank Stream, and in the early 'thirties the few cottages facing the side of the street in this vicinity had gardens extending to that stream. It was in one of these cottages that I was born, and I lived to see the land on which it stood sold at £1750 per foot.

SIR GEORGE MURRAY.

The Hon. George John Robert Murray, who has been created K.C.M.G., was born at Murray Park, Magill, in South Australia, on September 27, 1863, being a son of the late Mr. A. B. Murray, a pioneer pastoralist of that State. In 1912 he was appointed Judge of the Supreme Court of South Australia. He was educated at J. L. Young's school at Parkside, Edinburgh High School, and St. Peter's Collegiate School, Adelaide, where he obtained the Prankerd, Westminster, Wyatt, and Farrell scholarships; and at the Adelaide University, where he secured the University, John Howard Clark, and South Australian scholarships, also the degree of B.A. in 1883. From Adelaide University he proceeded to Trinity College, Cambridge, on the South Australian scholarship, and while there, in 1887, he was bracketed senior in the Law Tripos, being admitted to the degrees of B.A. and LL.B. In 1886 he held an Inns of Court studentship, and two years later was called to the Bar of the Inner Temple. In 1889 he was called to the South Australian Bar, and in the following year to the Bars of New South Wales and Victoria. He was associate to the Chief Justice, Sir Samuel Way, in 1889-90. In 1906 he was appointed a K.C., the distinction being for the first time conferred upon a graduate of the Adelaide University; and in 1909 he proceeded to the LL.M. degree at Cambridge. He is a councillor of Adelaide University, and in 1907 founded the Tinline scholarship in memory of his mother's family.

SIR JOHN GRICE.

Sir John Grice, who is the younger son of the late Mr. Richard Grice, was born in 1850, and was educated at the Melbourne Grammar School and Wesley College. On matriculating he entered the Melbourne University, and graduated LL.B. in 1871 and B.A. in 1872. He was subsequently admitted to the Bar. Sir John, as a young man, was an enthusiastic oarsman, rowing in the inter-university boat race between Melbourne and Sydney in 1870, and he was also a member of the intercolonial four-oared crew in 1872. Sir John was for many years a partner in the firm of Grice, Sumner, and Co., merchants, of Flinders-lane, and in addition he is well known as a director and chairman of the National Bank of Australasia and the Metropolitan Gas Company, and is on the Melbourne board of the Norwich Union Assurance Company, the Trustees, Executors, and Assurance Company, and the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company. He has also taken a deep interest in the affairs of Melbourne Hospital, of which he is president. During the war, Sir John has thrown himself with his usual zeal into the work of the Victorian branch of the Red Cross Society, and his work as honorary treasurer has been invaluable.

SIR ROBERT GARRAN.

A native of Sydney, Robert Randolph Garran was born in 1867, being the son of the late Andrew Garran, M.A., LL.D., M.L.C., at one time editor of the "Sydney Morning Herald." In September of last year he was appointed to the newly-created office of Commonwealth Solicitor-General, having been secretary to the Commonwealth Attorney-General's Department, and Parliamentary draftsman, since January 1, 1901. He was educated at the Sydney Grammar School, being captain of the school in 1884, and at Sydney University, where he was awarded the Cooper and Lithgow scholarships in classics, Barker and George Allen scholarships in mathematics, and the University scholarship for general proficiency. He was admitted to the degree of B.A. in 1888, and M.A. in 1899, with first-class honours, and gained the University medal in school of philosophy. In 1896-8 and 1899-1900 he was secretary to the representative of the New South Wales Government in the Legislative Council, and was, in 1897-8, secretary to the drafting committee of the Australian Federal Convention. He was created C.M.G. in January, 1901, and in the following year his marriage was celebrated with Hilda, third daughter of the late Mr. John Shield Robson, of Monkwearmouth, Durham. His work, "The Coming Commonwealth," was published in Sydney in 1897, and he was joint author with Sir John Quick, ex-M.P., of Quick and Garran's "Annotated Constitution of the Australian Commonwealth," published in 1901.

ARMED ASSAILANTS.

BUSINESS MAN ATTACKED.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

When Mr. Sinclair, manager of Watson's Grocery Company, Palmerston North, reached home last night he was held up by two armed men, who were hiding in the garden. Mr. Sinclair made an attempt to bolt, and one of the men fired. He pretended to be hit, and the assailants decamped.

MINERS' WAGES.

AN AVERAGE OF 32/ A DAY.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

At the sitting of the Coal Board to-day Mr. Lewis claimed that shiftmen employed on the second shift at Abermain No. 2 colliery should be paid 10 per cent. above ordinary rates. The contention of the proprietors was that 7½ per cent. above ordinary rates was the proper increase under the order.

Mr. Fallins, manager of the colliery, said that the miners had earned on an average 32s a day for the past fortnight, which included 10 working days.

After evidence had been heard his Honor said that he was not going to tie himself up by an interpretation of an order. He knew how impossible it was to provide for everything in those orders. He would not base his decision on the letter of the law, but on what was fair.

Mr. Fallins said that they had to go on the interpretation of the award.

Mr. Justice Edmunds: And you put your heads together and find every little point you can possibly find, as if you were going into a police court.

Mr. Fallins: I don't think so.

Mr. Justice Edmunds: I do. I think there is a good deal of it in Abermain.

It was eventually decided to deal further with the case to-morrow.

BUILDING SUBMARINES.

TRAINING AUSTRALIAN WORKMEN.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Encouragement is being given by the Minister for the Navy (Mr. Jensen) to a proposal that Australian workmen should be trained in the construction of submarines, with a view to submarines being built in Australia. Mr. Jensen stated to-day that he had already sent 15 workmen to Great Britain to gain experience in this class of shipbuilding and that he was considering the advisableness of sending ten others. The men went under an engagement, and were to spend two years in British yards, afterwards returning to the service of the Commonwealth.

FOR OUR SECURITY.

PEOPLING AUSTRALIA.

BRITISH IMMIGRATION.

IMPORTANT SPEECHES.

The importance of keeping emigration from Great Britain within the Empire after the war, and of providing for the settlement of new arrivals in Australia was dealt with by speakers at the annual luncheon and meeting of the British Immigration League, held at Baumann's Cafe, yesterday.

Mr. Edmund Jowett, the president, said that while the thought uppermost in all minds was the speedy conclusion of this dreadful war, they must face the possibility of future conflict. It was this fact that compelled them to consider what were the real foundations of national greatness, and Mr. Jowett went on to emphasise the importance of population, which in a country like Australia was bound up in the question of immigration. In 1870 the populations of France and Germany were about equal, but at the outbreak of the present war that of Germany had increased by 26,000,000, which the French population had stood still. It was this that had given Germany her initial superiority over France. The Germans numbered 66,000,000 when war broke out, and big as the British Empire was, its white population was less than that of Germany. Britain's best security after the war would be a huge increase of people of British blood throughout the dominions of the Empire, and the task of the Empire was to see that any emigration from Britain should be to the dominions. If there was one place in the Empire fitted to carry a large white population of British blood it was Australia, yet Australia's population had almost reached what John Stuart Mill used to call a stationary state. Unfortunately, owing to the political system which the people of Australia had set up, the lives of party leaders and statesmen were almost incessantly occupied in a struggle for political existence, which at times became so intense as to remind him of the lines:—

> When the dragons in their prime,
> Tore each other in the slime.

This probably was why so little had been done so far in the matter of the repatriation of Australian soldiers, and the immigration of British soldiers after the war. It was to be hoped, however, that the time was approaching when this struggle would be largely mitigated, and the matters referred to would receive full attention. The settlement of Australian soldiers on the land would require a large capital outlay, and for the settlement of British soldiers and sailors more money would be required. The latter question was receiving attention in England, and Mr. Jowett did not think Australia would be called upon to bear the separate cost of bringing out these immigrants. This should, and probably would, be done by the British Empire. (Hear, hear.). The putting of these people on the land, it appeared, was to be done by the various State Governments, the money being loaned either by the people of Australia, the Federal Government, or by Britain. The only point not settled was as to the support of immigrants between the time of their arrival and settlement on the land. Unless some provision was made for this period no immigrants would come, because they would not have the means to bridge the gap on their own resources. Some means, therefore, must be devised to provide advances to tide them over this period. It was unfortunate that the Australian Soldiers' Repatriation Fund Act, 1916, limited assistance to Australian soldiers, and he thought people would agree that it ought to be amended to include such British soldiers and sailors as would be approved of by the Commonwealth Government. Mr. Jowett emphasised that indiscriminate immigration was not proposed, even from Great Britain.

Referring to the question of a White Australia, Mr. Jowett said it would be little short of madness for any country occupied by a white population to contemplate for one moment the permanent admixture of a coloured race. The British Immigration League stood for a White Australia—an Australia of British blood for choice.

THE PACIFIC.

Mr. H. Y. Braddon dealt with the post-war position of Britain and the Dominions in the Pacific, and emphasised Australia's isolated situation, and its dependence on the British fleet. A great deal of Australia's future trade development lay to the east as well as to the west, and the possibilities of trade with Russia should be borne in mind. Germany hitherto had had most of this trade, as the figures for 1913 showed:—Total imports of agricultural machinery, £3,500,000, from Germany £1,250,000; other machinery, total imports £12,000,000, from Germany £3,500,000; woollen manufactures, imports £1,500,000, from Germany, £1,250,000; copper, imports £1,000,000, from Germany £900,000; carriages, motor cars, and other vehicles, imports £2,250,000, from Germany £1,750,000. Germany had also almost the whole of the leather trade. This, however, was going to end, and Australia must follow up the possibilities offered by the Russian markets. Before the war the subsidies paid by the German Government in the Pacific were six times as great as those paid by Great Britain and Australia to foster their own trade. Before the war, too, Germany held Samoa and part of New Guinea, which menaced the future of Australia in the Pacific, but which had been annexed by the force of British arms. (Applause.) There was a menace in the mere possibility of Germany maintaining a pied a terre in the Pacific, and they had heard from Mr. Walter Long that these colonies would not be given back.

Australia, however, wanted to know who would keep those places, and Australia should send her representative to the Imperial Conference, at Mr. Lloyd George's invitation to make her position clear. The Prime Minister probably was the most suitable person to go. (Hear, hear.). The paramount point was that whoever went should put the Australian view rather than seek personal aggrandisement. Whoever was Australia's representative would have to answer whether the administration of the Northern Territory had been so successful as to justify the assumption of further burdens. (Laughter.). The question of India, who by her loyalty, had established claims that could not be put aside, must also be considered, for this would not affect the White Australia question, but would be connected with the administration of a country already black.

Mr. Braddon pointed out that unless Australia rapidly developed her population she could not expect to remain unchallenged as regards the Northern Territory. It would never do to flood the country with unskilled workers, but they must endeavour to get people who would settle on the land, create employment, and help to bear the burdens that would follow the present war. Australia owed a tremendous duty to her young men who had fought and also to the soldiers of Britain. It would be no permanent benefit to give them inferior land where with lack of experience they would prove failures. They must have good land where reasonable success was assured. In addition to being given land, they should have help and tuition in making it pay. In this respect there was great scope for the activity of the British Immigration League. Mr. Braddon pointed out that the pestial and ruthless way in which the Germans had conducted the war would mean a long period of intense bitterness after it, and they would have to face the possibility of nations remaining armed to the teeth, and bearing the burden which that implied. Australia, therefore, must manage somehow to increase her population to an effective defensive level.

REPATRIATION.

Mr. J. C. Watson referring to the repatriation fund, said it was a mistake to assume that nothing had been done or that much more progress should have been made than was the case. There had been various preliminary difficulties to be overcome, but at the same time a great deal had been achieved. Public interest had been aroused, and people now realised that preparations must be made well in advance. Even though the war might last another twelve months or more it was not too early to have plans prepared. In Queensland there was an almost unlimited amount of land awaiting communication to open it up, and the same applied to Western Australia. In those two States in particular, there was scope for a large number of Imperial service men. In the other States the question rested on the recovery of land which had been alienated in the past. In New South Wales a great deal had been done already in the way of resumption, the Minister, Mr. Ashford, having thrown himself wholeheartedly into the work. In Victoria comparatively little had been done up to the present, but he understood they were now going ahead. A number of estates had been resumed in South Australia, but there they looked principally to irrigation blocks. As in New South Wales, agricultural training schools had been established. In Queensland and Western Australia, the only question was that of money. It took about £4000 to settle a man on the land. The Federal Government was dealing with the whole matter of repatriation apart from land settlement, and would doubtless provide for the period between the time a settler from Britain arrived and his reception on the land.

In connection with the setting apart of Friday, February 23, as Win-the-War League Day throughout New South Wales, the organising secretary stated yesterday that it was proposed that in business houses, factories, etc., someone should be appointed to secure members, obtain their signatures, and sell them a badge of membership. The cost of the badge would be 6d, and it must be understood that no effort was being made to raise funds, beyond actual cost of the badge. The committee will be glad to receive the name of a lady or gentleman appointed by any firm to act on behalf of its staff, when the necessary provision will be made to supply the firm's representative with badges and membership forms for signature.

IN OTHER STATES.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

To-day 69 volunteered, and 34 were accepted. For the week ended February 10 359 were accepted at the various recruiting depots.

AUSTRALIA AS A GERMAN PRIZE

A REDFERN MEETING.

There was a large gathering of the workmen, employed in Anthony Horderns' furniture factory and ironworks, in Buckingham-lane, Redfern, yesterday at lunch-hour. Mr. A. W. Tourney-Hinde, manager of the ironworks, presided.

Mr. E. J. Bickford reminded those gathered round that the Empire was in a serious position at the present moment. Germany had done things that no mortal man or nation would have dreamed could be perpetrated. The one thing certain was that we were not doing all we should do here in Australia to win the war. We might be holding our own at the front, but were nowhere pushing the enemy back. Germany had all along been hitting below the belt, and it was time that this was stopped. No honest boxer would hit below the belt, and he hoped the patrons of boxing contests present would renounce the Stadium for the front. If Germany won, Australia—the brightest jewel in the British crown—would be filched from her, and instead of our being free men we would be slaves such as were the Belgians to-day, who were forced to work at the point of the bayonet.

Mrs. Norman Shelley also addressed the gathering. She explained that she had lived in Germany, and knew the Germans and their hateful spy methods only too well. Those sitting round evidently did not realise the dangers of to-day or they would not be sitting on a kerbstone, but would be in the trenches. "God knows," exclaimed Mrs. Shelley, "we have a bad enough mix-up here, with politicians wrangling and playing for power." If Germany came here, as undoubtedly she would if we lost, politicians would be swept aside as chaff, and the workers would also lose their present good wages and conditions of living. They would be driven to work for the taskmasters at the butt of a rifle, as were the men of other nations Germany had conquered, and freedom would be a thing of the past. Australia had been honeycombed with German spies, who had reported to the Emperor what a prize Australia would be in the event of their winning the war. It was for the men of Australia to come forward and throw their weight into the great struggle on the Western front, to save their country from the possible invader, as every little would help at this critical period. It was not often she had the chance of speaking to men, but she hoped they would take their chance and don the khaki. (Applause.)

Mr. Buchanan appealed to those over military age to join the Win-the-War League, and the meeting concluded with three cheers for the King.

It was stated that a third of the men in the two factories were already with the colours, and two more employees signified their intention of joining up.

"BE BRITISH."

MEETING AT ROCKDALE.

"Some time ago a British liner was torpedoed by a German submarine. The vessel gradually began to sink, and those on board—men, women, and children—ran out alarmed at the terrible prospect that awaited them. The captain exhorted them to 'be British,' and every man on the ship had his back stiffened—the pride of race."

These remarks formed the pivot of a stirring appeal by Lieutenant Paton at a recruiting rally held in the Rockdale Town Hall last night. There was a large number of local residents present, who frequently applauded the speaker's remarks.

Lieutenant Paton went on to say that there were 90,000 men eligible for the front, and it devolved upon everybody to show these men their duty. The work of previous recruiting campaigns had fallen upon too few. Members of the Win-the-War League would be scattered all over the country, and each would do his best to secure recruits, or render such service in other directions as would help in the task of defeating the enemy.

Alderman Green remarked that 714 men belonging to the district had enlisted. He was sorry to think that there were men who had failed to realise their obligations. If they were playing in the football field not one of them would hesitate to rescue a comrade. They were not yet certain whether they would win the war. If they were going to win it would only be after making the utmost sacrifices. The home authorities had appealed for every available man.

Miss Grace Scobie said that they were going to create a public opinion that would drive these young men to the front. Over 650,000 women in Great Britain had taken up war work in order to release the men. They must teach the shirker that his place was at the front, and any woman who would waste her time on one was worse than the man. They had to bear in mind that nearly 500,000 men in Belgium had been deported to Germany, were forced to work in the munition factories, and indirectly fight against their brothers.

Miss Evans declared that during the Boer war she was a conscientious objector; she was now a "conscientious promoter." "It is only a fool who never changes his mind," she added. No man worthy of the name could look upon the honour roll before them without his thoughts turning to the comrades who were fighting for him. Miss Evans stated that she knew Nurse Cavell, a woman who had shown the men of the Empire how they should live and die. Her nobility was never excelled in the world's history. They must band themselves together and work for the Empire which protected them.

Other speakers also addressed the meeting.

RAILWAY SERVANTS' PAY.

A number of inquiries have been received by the "Herald" from relations of men in the Railway Department, asking whether the difference between military and departmental pay would be made up.

The organising secretary of the State Recruiting Committee has made inquiries from the department, and has supplied the following reply:—Payments are made periodically to the persons nominated by married men of the Railway Department, who join the A.I.F., and those single men who claim to have dependents, and submit documentary evidence in support of their claims, but in the case of single men without dependents the difference in pay is allowed to accumulate until their return. In the event of their decease whilst on service the moneys due are paid to their heirs at law. With regard to temporary men, the allowance is only paid where the men have completed six months' service immediately prior to enlisting. Each case is submitted to the Commissioners, and if payment is approved the same conditions as in the case of permanent men are applicable.

At a meeting of the Ariah Park Recruiting Committee the following resolution was passed:—"That this committee appeals to the military authorities to assist all war service committees by suppressing as far as possible speeches, literature, and cartoons inimical to the objects of the Win-the-War League, such having a detrimental effect on our efforts to secure recruits and successfully carry out the scheme generally."

TWO POLICEMEN SHOT.

DISTURBANCE IN BRISBANE.

BRISBANE, Monday.

A serious shooting affray took place at the corner of Albert and Elizabeth streets to-night. As a result two police officers are now lying in the hospital seriously wounded. It appears that a man, who gave his name as Oscar Olsen, created a disturbance in tea rooms in Albert-street. The proprietress sent for the police, but the man left the premises before their arrival. Constable William Cochrane was the first to arrive on the scene, and was approaching Olsen, who was some distance from the tea rooms, when he fired a revolver at the constable, one shot taking effect in the region of the heart. Detective M'Kierney and Detective-sergeant Thomas M'Nulty, who happened to be close by, rushed to Cochrane's assistance, but were fired upon, M'Nulty receiving a serious wound in the lower part of the abdomen. In all six shots were fired at the police. Olsen was overpowered and conveyed to the police station.

ALLEGED BRUTAL ASSAULT.

ADELONG, Monday.

Thomas Mouat, an orchardist, who was brought to Adelong on Sunday for medical attention, states that he was the victim of a brutal assault on Saturday night. He was returning home from Batlow on horseback, when he met three mounted men, whom he recognised. One of the men hurled a heavy substance, which struck him on the left elbow, and the other two then attacked him with stirrup irons. He galloped away, and reached the sliprails near his own house, where he was struck in the back and knocked down. Mouat's calls were heard by his brother, who sprang out of bed and rushed to his assistance. The three men then mounted and galloped away. Mouat received some severe injuries. The police have the matter in hand.

MISHAP TO A STEAMER.

Whilst at sea, between Hobart and Sydney, Messrs. Huddart, Parker's steamer Riverina met with a mishap. The vessel was going full speed, when by some means the piston rod was damaged. The vessel's engineers made temporary repairs, which enabled the Riverina to proceed on her journey at half-speed.

Owing to the mishap the Riverina was delayed for three hours whilst the damage was repaired, and as she had to complete the journey under reduced speed it was not until 3 p.m. that she arrived in Sydney. When off the Heads she was met by the tugs Stormcock and Champion, and assisted to the wharf, No. 3 Darling Harbour.

SOLDIERS' MAILS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have read your correspondent's letter on the subject of congested traffic at the G.P.O. on the day the mail closes for the Expeditionary Forces. May I suggest as a partial remedy and convenience that the large letter pillar at the Sydney Railway Station be cleared at an hour sufficiently early, say, 9.30 a.m., as on Saturdays, to permit of letters for the Expeditionary Forces being posted there to catch the mail closing at 11 o'clock on Mondays. At present its earliest morning clearance is 11 a.m. If letters could be posted there to catch the mail hundreds of people who come to Sydney by the early morning trains would find it a great convenience. Many people write their letters for the front on Sunday, and business does not always bring them to the heart of the city, in which case, if they wish to catch the 11 o'clock mail, they have to tram down to the G.P.O. and then return to their daily occupations, thereby causing extra expense, loss of time, and inconvenience. I am etc.,

FEDERAL SESSION.

SUPPLY BILL.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Senate will meet to-morrow to resume the debate on the Supply Bill. The debate has developed into an airing of grievances, but there is not likely to be deliberate obstruction offered to the passage of the measure. The bill has to be passed by both Houses by Wednesday in order that money may be available to meet the Commonwealth liabilities.

When the House of Representatives meets on Wednesday it is probable that Mr. Hughes will make an announcement with regard to the formation of the War Ministry, and that the House will rise shortly after.

DOMAIN CLINIC.

MINISTER MEETS HOSPITAL BOARD.

SOME PLAIN TALK.

That the controversy in regard to the proposal to extend the Sydney Hospital premises into the Domain in connection with the establishment of a venereal clinic is not yet over was demonstrated yesterday in an interview between the Minister for Health (Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald) and the hospital board. The Minister went to the hospital, and during the interview there was some plain speaking on both sides. The hospital authorities seem bent on securing a portion of the Domain, and whilst the Minister seems to be inclined to compromise with the public feeling engendered in converting Richmond-terrace into a nurses' home he does not hesitate to say that his private opinion leans in the same direction as that of members of the hospital board.

The Minister explained the Government's proposal to abandon the Domain clinic, and make room for it in the hospital premises by housing a large number of the nurses in Richmond-terrace.

Mr. Jacques said that when the board met the Minister before plans had been prepared for a temporary extension into the Domain. If the Minister would put the new proposal into concrete form it would be considered.

Dr. Nash, M.L.C., thought that the hospital board should meet the wishes of the Minister. A little sacrifice and a little patriotism on the part of the board would fix the matter up. It was inconceivable that the Domain should be used, and in the circumstances the only possible extension was into the air. The directors and the medical staff should face the matter seriously, and accept the Minister's proposal. Every hospital in the State should be prepared to do its best to help the country through a difficulty without wasting time and without making demands for additional money. In a week's time Sydney Hospital could be helping to get rid of the menace. If volunteer help were needed, he offered his services freely.

Mr. Garland was surprised at Dr. Nash's attack on the hospital. They were experiencing great difficulty in maintaining the medical and nursing staffs, owing to the war, and he resented insinuations against their patriotism. When the time came to open up the question of the hospital's extension into the Domain, he said, the board would appeal to the public, and the public would come to its aid. The objections, he held, came from a few faddists and the I.W.W., who were the people the Government had been paying attention to. Previous Governments had promised an extension into the Domain in return for a frontage taken on the widening of Macquarie-street. They wanted at least 150 feet square, and the hospital was prepared to find the money for the temporary buildings. The Domain could not be put to better use than providing facilities for treating the sick poor. The suggestion that the laundry should be removed was absurd, because it was saving the hospital £4000 per year.

The Minister said Richmond-terrace would accommodate about 125 nurses. He would not hesitate, he said, to recommend the temporary extension of the hospital into the Domain, but public opinion was very strong, and every aspect of the case had to be considered.

Mr. Garland: Public opinion is as it is manufactured.

After further discussion, and at the suggestion of Sir Matthew Harris, the Minister agreed to submit the complete Government scheme in writing for the further consideration of the hospital board.

OUTBREAKS OF FIRE.

Shortly before 6 o'clock yesterday evening an outbreak of fire, the cause of which is unknown, was discovered in a brick-and-iron building occupied by the Australian Mercantile Land and Finance Company, Limited, woolbrokers, Pyrmont. The George-st West and Glebe brigades turned out, but the firemen, assisted by the employees in the building, succeeded in extinguishing the flames with private hoses. About 30 bales of wool on the third floor, however, were damaged by fire and water, whilst a wool press, the glass work on the roof, and the ceiling of the third floor suffered damage by fire and heat. A portion of the contents of the three floors beneath was also affected by water.

A fire occurred at the residence of Mr. Gregory Ducker, in Meeks-street, Randwick, last night. When the Randwick, Waverley, and Paddington brigades arrived the fire had a good hold, and before the outbreak was extinguished the cottage—a seven-roomed one—was completely burnt out. The building and contents were insured with the Century Insurance Company for £300.

The outbreak spread to the buildings on either side, but the brigades easily dealt with the flames. In the residence of Mr. John W. Coote, however, the gable on the west side was severely damaged by fire; whilst a cottage occupied by Mr. Alfred P. Ducker suffered only slight damage on the west side.

SOLDIERS IN HOSPITAL.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) stated to-day that soldiers in hospitals abroad now receive at the discretion of the officer commanding the hospital cash payments up to 3s 6d per week. This sum would suffice to meet the scanty needs of the men while in hospital. The concession, he added, was a departure from a long established practice obtaining in the Imperial army hospitals of not permitting payments in hospital in view of the necessity for adhering to the prescribed diet with the addition of such luxuries as the Red Cross authorities are authorised to distribute.

DEATH OF MR. THOMAS BELL.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Mr. Thomas Bell, general manager of the Atlas Insurance Company, died suddenly today at his home in Malvern. Mr. Bell, who was 61 years of age, was formerly secretary to the Colonial Mutual Company in Sydney.

THE RECRUITING CAMPAIGN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Perhaps some of the most formidable obstacles to the recruiting campaign, which has made such a praiseworthy start under Professor Macintyre, are the old prejudices of the Referendum. Some of these prejudices exist yet, and they are hard to scotch and kill. One cannot travel through the country without discovering that these prejudices are still at work, and are producing a sad crop of mischief among available recruits. Soldiers who have returned from the trenches, and who have been in camp at Salisbury, are in a large measure responsible for them. Their arguments against enlistment do not appear in the Press, but they are canvassed among their friends, and they silently leaven the community. Here is one of them. Soldiers who have been to England are impressed with the fact that there are a million or so of men under training at Salisbury, whom the British authorities are very slow in sending to the front. Many Australian soldiers, while they were in the Salisbury camp, chafed under the delay, and came very naturally to the conclusion that more soldiers were called up than were needed. "Why," they asked themselves, "should Australian industries be crippled and the Labour market be depleted, so long as in English camps there were a million men whose services could not be utilised?" This argument, I believe, induced not only some soldiers in the trenches, but many returned soldiers here, as well as a number of their friends, to vote negatively on the Referendum. Of course, the answer is obvious. If Germany is putting this spring a million and a half more men in the field, we shall have to make a corresponding effort. Moreover, at any moment a crisis may arise, and must arise, when an extra half-million or a million men may decide the issue for victory or disaster. I merely mention the argument which is on the lips of many a returned soldier to-day, because it is dangerous and widespread. It is dangerous because it is specious, and because many advocate it and believe in it.

I am, etc., MILES AGRESTIS.

HONOURED BY THE KING.

SIR THOMAS ALLWRIGHT DIBBS.

IRISH LOYALTY.

SPEECH BY ARCHBISHOP MANNIX.

BRISBANE, Monday.

Speaking at the opening of a convent and presbytery at Ipswich-road to-day, Archbishop Mannix said it had been said the Irish people in this great war had been notably disloyal in Australia and disloyal in Ireland. He would say that the loyalty of the Irish people in Ireland and in Australia was one of the marvels of the present war. Lord Kitchener did not expect to get thousands of men from Ireland, but he did get thousands from there. Kitchener knew what England was prepared to do for Ireland, but he did not know what Ireland was prepared to do for England. In Australia and in Ireland they flocked to the colours because they thought it was a call to duty.

He was opposed to industrial conscription, he went on to say, but still he was anxious that Australia should do her duty so far as to have an honourable peace, because he wanted Australia to begin to build up the great Australia of the future. He hoped Roman Catholics would do their duty as citizens. They had in Australia a State system of State education supported by the general body of the people. He hoped before long Roman Catholics in Victoria, New South Wales, South Australia, and elsewhere would be banded together in one strong body to make their voices heard. He hoped to live long enough to see the Roman Catholics of Australia free, as well as the other people of the Commonwealth.

COAL TRADE INQUIRY.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

The principal business dealt with by the Coal Board at its sitting to-day was the claim of the miners for an inquiry to ascertain why so much Maitland coal was being sold in comparison with Newcastle coal. Mr. Justice Edmunds presided, with Captain Waring and Messrs. Clarke and Harle, representing the proprietors, and Messrs. Baddeley, Teece, and Peters, the employees.

His Honor said that he would inquire from the Railway Department what amount of Borehole and Maitland coal was supplied to the Government railways under existing contracts from June 30 last to next July, also the collieries from which the coal was obtained and the contract prices.

Mr. Lewis referred to other coal supplied outside gas contracts, and his Honor replied that the various companies might be invited to send in a report, stating the market value, giving the prices obtained, and reasons for the greater demand for Maitland coal.

The chairman decided to communicate with the Railway Departments in Victoria, South Australia, Western Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand on the matter.

Mr. Lewis pointed out that Maitland coal was being supplied to the railways at Narrabri, Curlewis, and Werris Creek, while the collieries at Curlewis and Gunnedah had not sufficient trade to keep them working continuously. He would like to know the cost of sending the coal from Aberdare to Werris Creek, and what was the price paid for it.

Mr. Harle: We say the prices do not concern you.

Mr. Baddeley considered that the board had a right to go into the whole question.

Mr. Clarke: These are private contracts.

Mr. Justice Edmunds said that the reports of the assessors could be placed before him as soon as they were ready.

"OUR BRAVE DEAD."

ARCHBISHOP AT THE FRONT.

WHAT WE OWE THE ANZACS.

PERTH, Monday.

Archbishop Clune, Roman Catholic chaplain-general of the Australian expeditionary forces, who has just returned from the front, delivered an address in the Perth Cathedral on the Australian soldiers at the front. His Grace said that about their gallantry and fighting qualities there was only one opinion held from the generals at the front to the "man in the street." He thought we did not realise how much we were indebted to them and should be indebted to them in the future not only for the glorious part they had played at Gallipoli and on the Somme, but also for having lifted Australia out of obscurity into the limelight and held her there to the admiring gaze of the world. When the war was gloriously ended he had reason to believe that hundreds of thousands of immigrants would flock to these shores. It would not, however, be due to the glamour of advertisement or to the appealing voice of the politician, but to the irresistible advertisement that the valour of her fighting sons had given her, and to the desire awakened in the hearts of hundreds who had fought beside them to settle down in the land from whose fertile bosom those brave men had sprung.

Through an attack of trench fever his stay on the Western front had been cut short, but through the kindness of General Birdwood, that wary and brave general, whom all the Australians adored, he was able to penetrate to the front trenches and see on the Somme some of the historic places that had been wrested at such cost from German occupation. It was his privilege to see some of the little graves where our brave dead were resting. He had never been so proud of being associated with Australians and of the privilege of living in the land that was now the cynosure of all eyes, and whose praise was on the lips of everybody.

CAPTAIN TO BRIGADIER-GENERAL.

A RECORD OF THE WAR.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

News has been received by Mrs. C. H. Jess, of North Fitzroy, that her husband, who left Australia as a captain in December, 1914, has been acting as Brigadier-General with command of the 2nd Infantry Brigade, A.I.F. At Gallipoli he was calm and fearless, always in the most dangerous positions, but by a kind fate escaped serious wounds, although his clothes were torn by many bullets. After several years' connection with the militia forces in Bendigo and Ballarat, Brigadier-General Jess, D.S.O., transferred 10 years ago to the permanent forces as a staff sergeant-major of the old cadet forces. Two years later, by competitive examination, he gained a lieutenancy on the administrative and instruction staff, securing captain's rank in 1912.

Soon after the outbreak of the war he was gazetted to the A.I.F. as staff-captain to Major-General Monash, of the 4th Infantry Brigade. In time he succeeded to the command of the 7th Battalion, and won his Majority in April, 1916. Later he was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. When Brigadier-General Forsyth, commanding the 2nd Infantry Brigade, left on his return to Australia a few weeks ago, Brigadier-General Antill, who was to have relieved him, was on the sick list, and Lieutenant-Colonel Jess took over the command temporarily in his stead.

Acting Brigadier-General Jess is only 33 years of age. He received the D.S.O. in the New Year list of honours.

AUSTRALIAN JOURNALISTS' ASSOCIATION.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The hearing was continued in the Arbitration Court to-day, before Mr. Justice Isaacs, of the claim by the A.J.A. against the proprietors of the metropolitan daily newspapers. Additional evidence was called on behalf of the claimant association. Geo. F. Harrison, first assistant sub-editor of the "Age," spoke in reference to the sub-editorial work in the "Age" office, and Henry C. Maddison, chief sub-editor of the "Argus," gave evidence regarding the work on that paper. Geo. Hawksley, of the Sydney "Evening News," and Charles Lee, of the Sydney "Daily Telegraph," were examined in connection with the conditions under which reporting and other journalistic duties were discharged in Sydney.

The further hearing will be continued tomorrow.

PATRIOTIC FUNDS.

DISCUSSION AT BATHURST.

BATHURST, Monday.

The distribution of the Bathurst Australia Day Fund, about which there has been some controversy, was finally settled at a meeting of the general committee, at which the local Red Cross Society made application for a further grant of £500. The treasurer of the Australia Day Fund explained that there was now only £700 to credit. They had already voted £1800 to the Red Cross, and he had never seen any official statement as to how the money had been spent; the auditor would have to be satisfied. He suggested that £100 be voted to the Red Cross, as he believed there were more deserving calls. The ladies of the Red Cross had done magnificent work in providing soldiers with comforts, but they were now faced with the bigger problem of providing assistance to relieve the distress among sick and wounded soldiers and their dependents.

Mr. J. J. Sullivan said that the relief of distress was a more urgent matter than the provision of comforts to soldiers.

Mr. R. W. Peacock contended that the Australia Day Committee had voted the Red Cross money to be spent as the ladies desired, and the submission of a statement of accounts to the Australia Day Committee was not obligatory.

On the casting vote of the chairman (Mr. M. Meagher), it was decided to vote £500 to the Red Cross. Mr. Meagher said he recognised the good work of the ladies, but also realised that there would be many cases of distress later on.

The meeting decided that the £200 remaining with the Australia Day Committee be handed over to the Amelioration Committee.

SIR E. SHACKLETON.

AMUNDSEN'S APPRECIATION.

LONDON, Feb. 11.

Captain Amundsen supplies the "Daily Chronicle" with an article in appreciation of Sir Ernest Shackleton. Captain Amundsen says he has long had the highest admiration for Sir Ernest Shackleton's qualities as a man of indomitable will and immense courage. "His 1908-9 journey was a most wonderful Polar achievement," he writes. "If he was great then, what can we say of him now. It is in misfortune that a man is tested. Nobody could be tried more than he and his companions during the past two years. Everything was against him on both sides of the Antarctic. His experience and sagacity enabled him to preserve the Weddel Sea party. It takes a sailor to appreciate his small boat journey to South Georgia, which was a triumph of great daring, crowned with deserved success. His later efforts to rescue his marooned companions on Elephant Island were followed with world-wide breathless interest.

"With unsuitable ships, but the best he could find, he tried again and again to break the ice cordon around Elephant Island. The word failure cannot be found in Sir Ernest Shackleton's vocabulary, and he succeeded."

Captain Amundsen pays a tribute to Mr. Frank Wild's devotion in saving his men. He then continues, "After this Sir Ernest Shackleton might have rested on his oars, but he did not hesitate to endeavour to rescue his comrades in Ross Sea. These men endured almost every misfortune that can fall to Antarctic travellers. It is the highest testimonial to their self sacrifice and devotion that the sick were brought safely to the base. Do not let it be said that Sir Ernest Shackleton failed. No one fails who sets such an example of high courage, unbroken resolution, and unshrinking endurance. The world is richer for this long record of unselfish devotion."

P. AND O. STEAM NAVIGATION.

The report of the above company for the year ended September 30, shows a net profit of £591,463, which with £78,182 brought forward, makes £669,645 available. A dividend of 12 per cent., and a bonus of 6 per cent. on the original deferred stock, free of income tax, and a dividend of 8 per cent. and a bonus of 8 per cent. on the deferred stock recently created, also free of income tax, were declared, absorbing £584,316, leaving £85,329 to be carried forward. Some property not now required by the company has been sold at a profit. Several outstanding unadjusted accounts, for which provision had been made in previous years have been closed, leaving credit balances. These factors, combined with the result of the year's operations, admit of an increase of 2 per cent. in the dividend and 1 per cent. in the bonus, and an addition to the reserve fund of £126,000. In the statement of accounts the book value of the fleet, plant, payments on account of ships under construction, property, stores, investments, and cash have this year been brought together "as a matter of convenience," and are set down at £12,401,008. Debenture stock to the extent of £100,000 has been redeemed, but the company has power to re-issue this at any time. The expense of loading and discharging the steamers, owing to the rise in wages, has greatly increased, and the cost of victualling, running, and working the ships, to which reference was made in the last report, has been much higher than it was during the previous year, in addition to which London dock dues have been augmented to cover the higher rates paid for labour, and the Suez Canal Company's tariff has been raised. The company's fleet has been reduced by nine steamers during the year. The company has suffered severely by the loss of the services of these ships. The two mail steamers which have been under construction for some time have made a certain amount of progress, as well as two large vessels with refrigeration, which were ordered in the early part of 1916; but construction has been greatly delayed owing to Admiralty requirements. As soon as the building yards are in a position to construct mercantile tonnage, with a prospect of assured delivery, several new ships will be ordered. The company has acquired practically the whole of the ordinary shares of the New Zealand Shipping Company, Ltd., paying for them by an issue of £905,820 P. and O. deferred stock, which was authorised by an extraordinary general meeting of the stockholders. This stock ranks pari passu with the stock previously issued, and carries dividend and bonus for the six months ended September 30, 1916. The P. and O. Company's shares in the New Zealand Shipping Company ranked for the final dividend for the year ended June 30, 1916. This has been received and brought to account. Half of the P. and O. Company's fleet has been in the service of the Government during the past year at pre-war rates.

N.Z. L. AND M. AGENCY.

The report of the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, Ltd., for the year ended June 30, is to hand by mail. It shows that, after paying interest on the first and second mortgage debenture stocks, making provision for bad and doubtful debts and depreciation on investments, adding £20,000 to reserves, and writing £10,000 off premises, there remains a balance of net revenue of £112,131. The directors have appropriated £5000 to the staff benevolent fund, and recommend a final dividend of 3½ per cent. on the ordinary stock to June 30, less tax, making 6 per cent. for the year, leaving a balance of £7612. The balance of £81,404 brought forward from last year has been transferred to a general revenue account, to which will be added the amount carried forward from this year. In last year's report it was stated that no provision had been made for excess profits duty, as the amount of such duty had not then been ascertained. In this year's accounts the board have made such provision under the item "taxes" as they consider adequate for this duty, both in the United Kingdom and in Australasia, up to June 30, 1916. There has been received from the liquidator of the New Zealand Land Association, Ltd., a final payment of £6355, while there has also been received from realisations of properties handed over by the old company £34,179, making £90,533. This sum has been applied as follows:—To reserves, £70,000; to writing down premises, £20,533. The total of the reserves now amounts to £500,000. The unsatisfactory weather at the beginning of the year under review continued well into the present year, and caused considerable losses of stock. The drought from which certain districts in New Zealand suffered during the early part of the year has broken up, and the prospects in the Dominion for the current year are encouraging. Values of wool, stock, and dairy produce continue at a high level.

INTERSTATE EXCHANGES.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

To-day's quotations were:—Denny's Lascelles, 14/; Melbourne Tram, 9/11; Amalgamated Pictures, 12/; Bank of Victoria, 63/3.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

There was a steady inquiry for groceries yesterday at firm rates. Cadbury's cocoa was dearer. Packets were quoted at 6/, ½lb tins at 9/6, ½lb tins at 18/6, and 1lb tins at 36/. Soda crystals were also better property at £8 a ton. All Keen's preparations brought higher rates. Mustard in ¼lb tins realised 7/3, in ½lb tins 13/6, and in 1lb tins 26/. Keen's groats and barley brought 11/9. The export of these latter lines from Great Britain has been prohibited. Tinned fish sold well. Salmon attracted a good deal of attention, and full prices were paid. The leading brands of herrings, both English and American, were scarce. One of the best-known American packers cabled "No more fish to offer." Norwegian sardines were in strong hands. Private cablegrams from London stated that special permits had now to be obtained before potted meats could be exported. Dried fruits were quiet. A fair amount of business was done in tinned fruits.

Galvanised iron was again practically unobtainable. Most of the leading houses were unable to accept orders. In Melbourne also stocks were said to be light. There was an average demand for fencing wire. No. 8 black cleared at £23/10/, and No. 10 at £27/10/ a ton. Nos. 8 and 10 galvanised were both offered at £29/10/.

Heavy chemicals were quiet at last week's rates. Tartaric acid was to be had at 2/3, and citric at 3/1. Holders of soda ash were again very firm, and it was impossible to buy a small parcel under £16/10/ a ton. Bluestone was offered at from 69/ to 73/ per cwt. In Melbourne the market was rather excited, with prices showing a wide range. While one house was selling market lots at 73/6 and distributing lot at 75/, some houses were asking as high as 80/. Although Australia is a heavy exporter of copper, it is apparently impossible to induce manufacturers to produce sufficient sulphate (commercially known as bluestone) to supply the local requirements.

Holders of linseed oil exhibited greater confidence in the market, and most of them refused to sell the best imported brands under 5/10 a gallon. Turpentine was quoted at from 4/3 to 4/5. Whitelead was steady.

Future deliveries of kapok advanced ½d per pound. Distributers sold small lots to the country at from 8½d to 9¼d per pound.

BILLS OF LADING.

The Customs Department draws attention to the fact that in time of war the practice of shipping goods with bills of lading made out "to order" (made illegal by section 4 of the Customs (War Powers) Act, 1915, in the case of goods shipped from the United Kingdom under license) is very undesirable in respect of any goods exported from any part of the British Empire. Shippers of goods not requiring licenses are therefore advised not to make out bills of lading "to order," but only (a) to a named consignee, or (b) to a bank or financial house of high standing, with the remark in the margin of the bill of lading, "Notify A.B.," "A.B." being the name of the person or firm for whom the goods are ultimately destined. Goods shipped to Holland should be consigned to the Netherlands Oversea Trust.

It is essential during the war that, in the case of all goods, whether shipped under license or not, British ships should have on board throughout the voyage a full manifest of cargo and all the bills of lading, or certified copies of the bills of lading.

Unless these requirements are complied with there will be a risk that the ships will be stopped and diverted by H.M. ships or the war vessels of the allied nations, in order to permit of full examination of the cargo, and ascertainment of its destination.

In the case of British ships that will touch at ports in countries contiguous to enemy territory, compliance with these requirements is of special importance, and serious delay may result to ship and cargo in such cases if all ship's papers are not on board and in order.

MINING.

WESTONIAS AGAIN FIRMER.

The most noticeable feature of yesterday's mining market was the firmer tendency which was evident in connection with Western Australian gold ventures. Apart from this, there was very little out of the ordinary. A moderate amount of business was transacted, and values on the whole were much the same as has been the case of late.

In the gold section the majority of sales was effected in Deeps and Consolidated contributing. Probably the two following telegrams, which were received by the secretary of the Stock Exchange, considerably influenced business in these two concerns.

The manager of the Edna May Consolidated gold mine telegraphed:—

Main shaft drive No. 5 shaft advanced 8ft, total 30ft. Through bar in country commenced use to No. 5 shaft drives of winze. 100ft level, S.E., advanced 6ft in ore, total 12ft, value over 3ft wide, 12dwts. Northwest advanced 6ft, total 18ft; nice gold showing in [illegible] stone, average value 17dwts over 3ft.

The following was sent by the manager of the Edna May Deep Levels gold mine:—

Main shaft sunk 6ft; total below plat, 43ft. Quartz and dyke values, about 4dwt. Rise advanced 4ft, total 29ft; values 20dwt.

Consols (contg.) opened /1 firmer at 8/1, and advanced to 8/5; later, however, they receded to 8/3. Opening cash sales of Deeps were recorded at 6/4, a price which showed a rise of /5, but during the day the course followed by prices was somewhat erratic. In five sales they gradually eased to 5/10½, then recovered ½d, and closed on a level with Saturday last at 5/11. Centrals were unaltered at 18/3. Edna May changed hands at 69/6, a rise of 1/6; parcels of the same scrip for delivery in six weeks cleared at 69/.

Values in silver scrip varied somewhat. Brokens sold at 44/ in the morning, and closed at 43/6, a fall of /9 on the day. Junction Norths were /1 easier at 8/6 in the early part of the day, but afterwards advanced to 8/11. Parcels for delivery in six weeks recovered /9 at 9/. Zinc Corporation (pref.) found cash buyers at 46/6.

Tin ventures attracted very little attention, two companies, which were responsible for three sales, being the sum total of the business transacted. Ratruts, for delivery in six weeks, sold at 16/6, a rise of 1/, while cash buyers of the same scrip paid 16/6 also, in this case there being an advance of /7½. Kampong Kamunting shares for delivery in six weeks eased 1/ to 32/6.

Kirk and Wade's Molybdenite scrip sold at the unaltered rate of 6/.

CARPATHIA TIN-MINING COMPANY.

"Shareholder" writes:—

Sir,—At the last half-yearly meeting of the above company the chairman announced that arrangements had been entered into with the White Crystal Company to crush 4000 tons of ore for the Carpathia mine, at a cost of 22/ per ton. He also read a telegram from the mine manager, giving very satisfactory results from a small crushing. Now we are informed that, owing to a breakdown of the battery at the White Crystal, ore is being despatched again to Irvinebank. Seeing that before the breaking down of the machinery 2000 tons were crushed, why have not the shareholders been advised of the profits accruing to the company on the said 2000 tons. As tin is £200 per ton I am of opinion if the mine were properly worked the shareholders should get dividends. As the next half-yearly meeting will be held in March, the directors can look forward to having an extremely lively time, not that it was too slow at the last meeting.

BROKEN HILL PROPRIETARY, LIMITED.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Mr. F. M. Dickenson advises having sent the following cablegram to the branch office in London, of the Broken Hill Proprietary, Limited:—"Net profit, half-year ended November 30, 1916, £156,429, after deducting depreciation, £15,169; debenture interest, £16,405; and sinking fund, £15,000.

EDNA MAY DEEPS.

MINE MANAGER'S REMARKS.

A most interesting mining meeting was held in Melbourne lately, when about 70 shareholders in the Edna May Deep Levels Company, Western Australia, assembled to hear the explanation of Mr. N. S. Stuckey (mine manager) as to the position at the mine. Mr. C. N. Armytage (chairman of directors) presided.

Mr. Stuckey said that the shaft was down 30ft below the No. 3 level plat, and, in spite of what had been said to the contrary, was precisely in the right place for working and exploring the mine. The level at 480ft had disclosed a large quantity of ore, most of it, unfortunately, of lower grade than had been treated so far, but apparently all the ore in sight was payable. The battery had up to late returned gold valued at £5300 from 1400 tons of ore, so that a fall of 50 per cent. in the grade was allowable without becoming unprofitable. The stone crushed consisted of all the ore broken since the reef was struck. Nothing had been dumped. There was a considerable amount of ore still to be stripped from the sides of the 480ft level, and he did not know the average width or value of the reef there yet. The battery returns were the only test of values until the level was completely opened up. Below the 480ft level, in the No. 1 winze, and in the main shaft, a horn-blende dyke was exposed, which cut across the reef at a flat angle. This dyke had twice been seen in the Edna May workings, but never penetrated. In the Deep Levels diamond drill hole, where it was 5ft thick, it had been cut, but never fully exposed. It was possible that the dyke that intruded in the south-east end of the Edna reef at the 300ft level of the Edna May mine was a branch of the dyke at the Deep Levels 480ft level. Neither of those dykes was the main body of greenstone rock, and, so far as data available at present went, they did not expect to reach the main body of greenstone before the shaft was 630ft deep. There was no reason why the reef should not be as strong and as rich as ever under the dyke now showing in the shaft, but it was possible that the dyke would follow the reef channel some distance. The chances were that any faulting of the reef on the plane of the dyke would be normal; that is, the reef would be further west and north, or further in the Deep Level ground below the dyke. Besides the Edna May reef, the bend of the new reef in the Central ground, if it continued on its present pitch and underlie, would reach the Deeps ground between 600ft and 700ft from the surface. The reef was under the dyke that now showed in the bottom of the Deep Levels shaft. It would be on the south side of that dyke towards the south-east, and might junction with the Edna reef at greater depth. It was of considerable prospective value, and the Deep Levels shaft should be continued to about 670ft vertically. Both reefs should then be within easy working distance of the shaft. It was possible that the new make of reef in the Central might continue with the eastern reef at greater depth. It was under consideration to open a level at about 720ft further down, in such a position above the dyke as to make all the ore above that available for immediate crushing. It was not supposed that the dyke would prove rich enough in gold to be payable, although rich specimens had been met with in clean dyke rock. The general average was low, and it was patchy. His own opinion was that that gold was originally derived from the reef by the absorption of portions of the reef by the hot molten basic material of the dyke at the time it intruded into the reef. The nature of the dyke and the gold in it could be seen from specimens. It was intended to crush double the quantity of ore very shortly, although the grade could not be foretold, as it was all from development, but it was hoped that sufficient gold would be won to meet all costs.

Continuing, Mr. Stuckey said that 8dwt to 6dwt would pay the company's way when the mine was fully developed. Until then the cost would be 12dwt. All the ore taken out had averaged about 1oz per ton, with sands valued at about 10/ to 12/.

Mr. J. Maughan (legal manager) said that at the end of the month the company would have about £1000 to credit after paying off all liabilities and allowing for the next crushing to approximate the value of the previous one.

HOMEBUSH STOCK SALES.

SHEEP AND LAMBS LOWER.

About 12,000 sheep and lambs were enumerated on yesterday's list, and 11,363 were forward from 42 owners, representing nearly every sheep-growing district in the State. The highest number in any one consignment was 1410; there was also a consignment of 1000, and the average number in the remainder was between 200 and 300. At the beginning the market was equal to that of Thursday, but buyers soon slackened, and prices eased all round, notwithstanding that the quality of the offerings was good. There was a larger than usual representation of heavy crossbred wethers, and some of these were very prime and choice. The showing of large framed merinos was also good. Lambs were in rather short supply. Some high prices were realised for extra choice lots; the biggest realisation of the day being 47/3 for some crossbred wethers from Mr. R. T. E. Burrett, of Homewood. One or two other lots, the tops of different consignments, realised more than 40/, but the general tone of the market was easier, and at lunch time values stood at about 1/ a head less for trade sheep, and up to 2/ less for heavies. There was no change worth noting in the afternoon, the market closing weak.

Noteworthy sales were:—Account Edgerol Station, Edgerol, w, early shorn, to 40/; C. G. Waddell, Bethungra, x w 35/1, w to 33/6; R. T. E. Burrett, Homewood, x w to 41/11; G. Hall, Wingen, x w to 39/7; W. Jackson, Illiliwa, w to 36/10; Perry and Sons, Limited, Narromine, x w to 37/6, w to 33/5; Driver Bros., Coonamble, x w to 38/1, w to 35/; G. Cochrane, Walgett, x e to 36/; Read Bros., Moree, w to 38/7; J. Oldham, Binnaguy, x w to 35/10.

Quotations: Prime shorn merino w and h, to 33/; extra, to 35/6; good ditto ditto, to 30/; best merino e, to 32/10; prime shortwool merino w and h to 34/6, best to 38/7; prime shortwool merino e not noted; prime shorn crossbred w and h, to 34/; extra, to 42/6; prime shortwool ditto ditto, to 37/; extra, to 40/; a few to 47/3; prime crossbred e, to 37/1; odd pens of woolly sheep, to 39/6.

CATTLE UNCHANGED.

The number of cattle forward was 1209, from 57 owners. Quality generally was good, and the offerings ranged from vealers up to heavy bullocks. There was a little irregularity in the early sales, but the market soon steadied to about the average of Thursday's rates, and so continued up to the luncheon adjournment, although there was not such buoyancy in the biddings as to justify the conclusion that it was firm. Cows and young beef were firmer than bullocks.

Afternoon sales showed an improvement, as values became firmer, and the change lasted until the end of the sales, the market closing firm at Thursday's rates, with odd sales running from 10/ to 15/ higher.

Amongst the highest prices realised were:—Account J. H. and R. J. Faban, Cowra, bullocks at £20/3/; A. & Co., Willowtree, bullocks to £21/2/ avg. £20/10/8; S. Gall and Sons, Gurley, bullocks to £21/10/, av. £19/8/3; T. A. Harris, Denman, bullocks to £24/5/, avg £18/17/4; W. R. Pitman, Binneguy, bullocks £20/4/.

Quotations: Yards of prime light bullocks and steers, to £19; yards of prime medium-weight ditto ditto, to £21/10/; yards of prime heavy ditto ditto, to £24, odd higher; good to about £17; medium and light, to about £14; yards of prime cows and heifers, to £16/10/; extra, to £18; good, to £15; medium, to £11; light and inferior, lower; prime light beef, about 51/6; choice young (yearlings), higher; prime medium-weight, to about 51/; prime heavy, to about 46/; good trade beef, to about 45/ per 100lb.

PARRAMATTA QUARTER SESSIONS.

The Parramatta Court of Quarter Sessions opened yesterday before Judge Rogers.

William Rustin, who pleaded guilty to a charge of maliciously wounding N. S. Perkins, on January 13, at Parramatta, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment in Goulburn Gaol.

William Schmidt was charged with the larceny of a pair of boots, the property of I. Graf. Accused said he did not know, until he had disposed of the boots, that they were stolen goods. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and accused was discharged.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

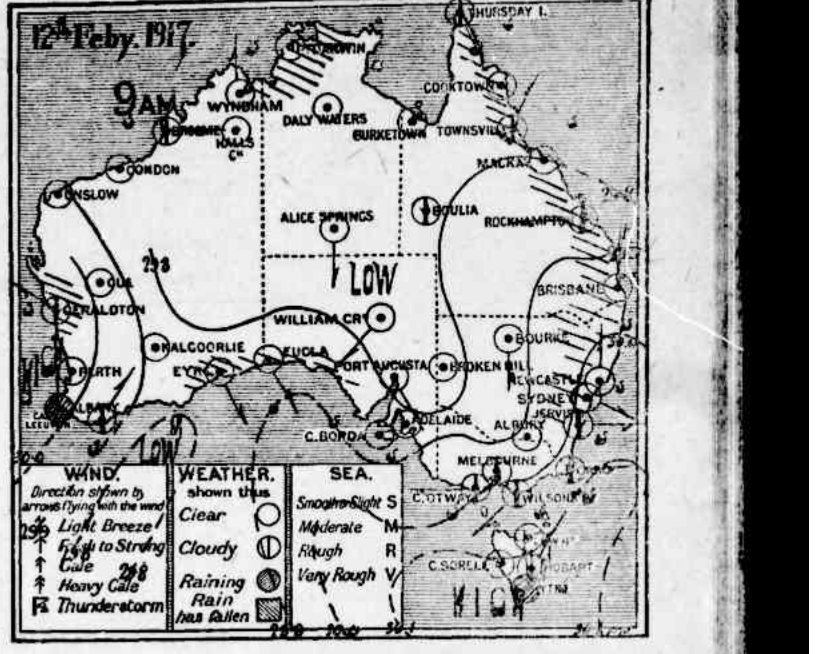
TO-DAY'S AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



During the 48 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday very little easterly movement has taken place in the different pressure systems. The centre of the "high" is still a little to the south of Tasmania, but it has lost nearly one-tenth of an inch in barometric values. This sagging has allowed the monsoonal depression to assume control, and consequently we may expect a continuance of warm and sultry weather, with northerly winds, and later scattered thunderstorms, in our inland districts. The Antarctic disturbance over the western portion of the Bight has not so far asserted itself, but the one over New Zealand is still energetic, and is causing wet and squally southerly weather over the greater part of the Dominion.

Ocean Forecast.—Squally southerly off the North Coast of New South Wales; smooth to moderate elsewhere.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

THEATRICAL EMPLOYEES.

The claims of the Theatrical and Amusement Employees' Association of Australia have been set down for hearing before Mr. Justice Higgins in Sydney during March. The managers of the various theatres have expressed a desire that the award should only be made retrospective for a period of eight weeks prior to whatever date upon which the award comes into force, the picture show proprietors excepted. The members of the association, on the other hand, wish to have the award made retrospective from January 1 of this year. A general meeting of the association was held at the rooms, 614 George-street, to consider a recommendation from the executive committee that the offer of the proprietors be not accepted. The conviction was expressed that the award should not only be dated back as stated, but should embrace all sections of amusement-houses. It was unanimously resolved to inform the federal management committee in Melbourne of this decision. Mr. A. E. Huckerby, general secretary of the association, who has come to Sydney from Melbourne to confer with the picture show proprietors of this State, was present.

BLACKSMITHS AND HAMMER WORK.

A combined deputation, representing the Blacksmiths' Union and the Engineers' Society, waited upon the Railway Commissioners, Mr. Fraser and Mr. Fox, yesterday, with regard to the question of the employment of unskilled labour in various engineering shops of the department. With regard to the claim that tradesmen only should be employed on drop-hammer machines, the Commissioners agreed that the request was a reasonable one, and said that instructions would be given that only skilled labour should be employed on them in future. The claims that blacksmiths should be employed on full rates of pay on the forging machines was also conceded. The Commissioners, however, refused to entertain the request that skilled men only should be allowed to operate the Oliver hammer. It was pointed out that the classification had really been fixed by the wages board which had adjudicated in connection with that particular work, and it thus became binding on the department by the operation of clause 26 of the Arbitration Act. Moreover, it was stated that it had been the practice of the department for a number of years to move up the assistants as occasion arose, and it was not intended to depart from that custom now. The question of regulation work in connection with the Bulldozer was deferred to allow of inquiries being made as to whether the union's claims could be justified.
